Girl Fights to Bring Baby to Jail

MAMA WANTS HIM IN JAIL

Thomas Bergin, 10 months old, whose mother, Mrs. Bessie Kelly Bergin, is serving a year's term in Sherborn Reformatory for drunkenness. She has petitioned the court to send him there to be with her. Today he ate ice cream while the issue faced a fight. (Staff Photo.)

MOTHER LOVE YEARNS FOR BOY IN CELL

Sister Aids Court Battle Under Law That Permits Incarceration of Infants

Mother love transcending all obstacles today reached out from a prison cell at Sherborn Reformatory to lay claim to the law and the right to have with her in her cell a 10-month-old baby boy.

A week ago Bessie Kelly Bergin, 36, of South Boston, now an inmate at Sherborn, filed a petition asking of the court the permission to have by her side while she served the remainder of a year's sentence, her young son.

There is to be a hearing of her request, one of the most unusual petitions ever filed, in Superior Court today.

SISTER AIDS BATTLE

The mother was sentenced May 9, and will be eligible for parole next January. Nine months of the nine months completion of her term, the mother is fighting for the comfort of the little red-headed boy.

A younger sister, Mary Kelly, 20, of Broadway, South Boston will conduct the battle, that Bessie may enjoy, as her petition sets forth, "the love and comfort of my baby."

Under the law, a woman prisoner may have with her while confined in a penal institution a child under 18 months on order of a court magistrate. The decision is within the discretion of the court.

While in jail the younger sister explained today, the fight was instituted.

MOTHER LONELY IN JAIL

Young Thomas, affectionately named by his aunt, "Bunky Boodles," was born August 13, 1931, and since his mother's imprisonment last May has been cared for at the South Boston home of Mary Kelly.

And when his aunt is occupied, her three-year-old boy, Thomas, plays nuse-maid to the infant.

Like his mother and his aunt, the baby has titian colored hair and is adorable.

Unaware of the fight for his possession conducted by his mother,

WATERWAYS TREATY IS SIGNED

Final Approval Placed on 800 Million Dollar Project Linking U. S. and Canada

Washington, July 18 (INS)—The treaty for the $800,000,000 development of the St. Lawrence River seaway from the Atlantic Ocean to the Great Lakes was signed by Canada and the United States today.

The ceremony took place in the conference room of the state department adjoining the office of secretary of State Stimson.

His signer for the United States and William D. Herridge, Canadian minister to the United States signed for Canada.

The treaty provides for a 27-foot channel from the Gulf of St. Lawrence, through the great Lakes to Chicago and Duluth. The estimated cost will be divided between the United States and Canada.

POWER TO BE SHARED.

The treaty equally divides the hydro-electric power to be generated in the international section of the St. Lawrence. It leaves to each country the disposition of the power allotted to it.

It provides that there shall be no greater diversion of water from the Great Lakes system than that already authorized by the ruling of the United States Supreme Court, except by agreement of a joint board to be appointed by Canada and the United States, should the need arise.

TWO DAMS PLANNED

The text of the treaty was made public simultaneously at Ottawa and at Washington as soon as the ceremony of signing had taken place. It provides for the construction of two huge dams, one to be in the lower of the Thousand Islands section of the river and the other near the upper end. Canada will construct one and the United States the other.

The treaty consists of ten articles and a separate schedule, the latter specifying the duties of the St. Lawrence International Rapid Section Commission, which is to be appointed by the two countries to execute the works agreed on in the treaty.

Gang Plots to Kidnap R. I. Heirs

Falmouth, July 18—Disclosure that the plot to kidnap George Comstock, Jr., 17, son of one of the wealthiest families in Rhode Island, also included his brother, W. Kendall Comstock, 15, was made by George and his uncle, William Rancourt.

Since the first demand on the Comstocks for payment of money under threat that the boys would be kidnaped, George has been under guard of his uncle, noted horseman and polo player.

OTHER BOY GUARDED

Rancourt said today that W. Kendall Comstock is being similarly guarded at the Comstock home in Providence. Tonight George will be taken by his uncle to Newport, and will be taught still unseen guard—to play polo, Rancourt said.

Revelation of the strict watch being kept over the youth brought out the fact that a gang had demanded $25,000 from his family under threat of kidnaping the youth and has been conducting negotiations with the family since June 6.

SUSPECTED HOAX

It was also disclosed that extortion attempts were started that January with a demand for $10,000 and that two more demands were made within a month. On the third demand Rhode Island state police were informed but nothing more was heard from the gang until June.

It is believed the hue and cry arising over the Lindbergh baby kidnaping caused the gangsters to lie low until June, when again they presented a demand for $10,000, the money to be placed in a spot near Lincoln, R. I.

This letter was turned over to State police at the Blackstone barracks and a heavy guard was placed over the boy at his home in Lincoln. The boy presently believing the entire affair was a hoax.

Shortly after this he came to Falmouth with his uncle, and here

VETS SEIZED AS POLICE USE MAILED FIST

Conciliatory Tactics Dropped; President's Home Is Under Heaviest Guard Since War

Washington, July 18 (INS)—Police dropped their lenient policy toward the Bonus army today, and arrested two marchers who initiated a picketing move on police court, where the three veterans arrested Saturday night were to be arraigned.

The two men, Albert Hale of Detroit, and John Fabroshoki of Pittsburgh were held for investigation and half a hundred of their followers ordered to "keep moving."

PICKET MOVE GROWS

The arrests caused little disturbance, but gave added impetus to a move among the so-called "radical" element of the bonus-seeking veterans to again try and picket the White House in protesting failure of Congress to enact bonus legislation.

Police have turned thumbs down on any such plan, and probably the small guard around the White House grounds will be reinforced tonight. The disturbance caused Saturday, when 53 marchers tried to picket the White House, caused the heaviest cordon of police since the war to be thrown around the executive mansion.

MR. ZERO ARRESTED

The trio arrested Saturday, Nathan Kalb, one-armed New York veteran; Urbain Ledoux (Mr. Zero of New York's soup kitchens) and Joseph Patrick Hannigan, of Los Angeles, were booked for parading without a permit, and Kalb, who resisted arrest, was also charged with disorderly conduct. Ledoux obtained $125 bond and was released, but the other two awaited hearing.

Cap Saves His Life

The insigne on cap of Sergt. Charles Edwards, armorer at the Commonwealth Armory, saved him from serious injury by a bullet from a gun in hand of an intruder. Other shots missed him. Edwards wore his cap tilted back, a shot hit the insigne, and came out on top of the cap. He suffered a slight wound on top of his head. The sergeant thinks one of his shots hit one of the fleeing youths—as he heard a cry. (Staff photos.)

DOCTOR WHO BEAT UP 2 POLICEMEN GOES FREE

X-Ray Expert's Wife Declines to Take Action, So Officials Quit Prosecution

The police department "took a dive" today after staging a feeble rally in the second round of its bout with Dr. Humphrey L. McCarthy, Back Bay X-ray specialist.

Dr. McCarthy on Saturday was alleged to have pursued an ice cream vendor, disrupted a wedding reception and rendered two patrolmen hors de combat in a knockdown, drag-out fight in his home in Beacon st., and it was expected that the police, after a Sunday of inhaling smelling salts, would rally and capture the contest in the second round in court today.

BOW TO DOCTOR'S WIFE

But alas! and alack! The contest ended when the police department suddenly, and without warning to the customers, went into a gracefully executed back-flopper after the best manner of Phil Scott, celebrated British champion of the diving pugilists.

The doctor will not be prosecuted," announced the police department, gasping "uncle," and folding up, accordeon fashion.

The department resorted to an unique procedure in accomplishing the towel-tossing act which proclaimed the doctor undisputed victor.

The police didn't wish to prosecute Dr. McCarthy themselves as they bowed in a "you-de-it-phono" manner to Mrs. McCarthy and upon learning that she didn't care to prosecute, either, decided to prosecute for her, instead of for themselves.

The result was no warrant.

Statements that the doctor was "delirious" during the melee and that no liquor figured in the case were made by police officials.

Patrolman John J. Lowney, nursing a fractured hand suffered in the encounter, conferred with police officials, then announced he would not make personal complaint against the doctor; conferred with the doctor and Mrs. McCarthy, then applied for a warrant charging the doctor with assaulting his wife.

WARRANT DENIED

If a person assaulted does not wish to prosecute, the police may prosecute only when they have witnesses to the assault. They had no witnesses. Patrolman Lowney said he didn't see the doctor attack his wife and of course the warrant was denied.

"I feel," said Patrolman Lowney, after talking with Supt. Crowley, "that the doctor has a high reputation and has suffered enough, both physically and from the publicity."

"Ridiculous," Lowney feels," said Supt. Crowley after talking with

KAYE DON SETS NEW RECORD

Luss, Loch Lamond, Scotland, July 18 (AP)—Kaye Don, British speed boat racing king, today won back for England the world's water speed record by setting a new mark of 119.81 miles per hour, the average of two runs over the mile course on Loch Lamond in his boat, Miss England III.

The new mark tops by more than 8 miles an hour the previous record held by Gar Wood of Detroit. Wood's record, set in Florida waters, was 111.720 miles.

Don twice broke the record in two hours today. On his first run, made shortly after 5 a. m., he negotiated the course a mile up and a mile back at an average speed of 117.45 miles. An hour later he and his 22-year-old mechanic, Dick Garner, again started Miss England III in quest of new figures.

The first mile lap, from south to north, on the second run was covered at 120.30 miles an hour and the southward lap at 119.12, an average of 119.81.

WATER IS UNFIT FOR BATHING

Several samples of water taken from Dorchester bay between Carson beach and Head House, City Point, last Saturday by Rep. John J. Reardon of South Boston were polluted as a result of garbage disposal, according to the legislator.

Rep. Reardon today charged that the water in this area is unfit to bathe in and called upon Health Commissioner Francis X. Mahoney to close the beaches in South Boston and Dorchester to the public, or prohibit the Coleman Disposal Co. of Boston from dumping garbage that causes the alleged pollution. More than 100,000 persons bathe in this section every Sunday.

He also says that 13 culverts discharge sewage into Dorchester bay and that this should be prevented.

Man Freed in Stabbing Held in Castelone Death Quiz

Investigation of the two shotgun slayings in Boston and Revere last week took a new turn today when a man freed in Chelsea court of complicity in a stabbing was seized in connection with the Lowell st. murder of Charles Castelone, bootlegger.

He is Frank Marconi, 26, of Middle st., Portland, Me. who with three companions was released by Judge Cutler after arraignment on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon on George Manolian, former boxer, of Woodrow ave., Dorchester.

Manolian was stabbed in the leg in Revere Saturday night, and police expressed interest in the case following the shotgun killings of Anthony Diamante in Revere Thursday night and Castelone in Boston Friday night.

IDENTIFICATION FAILS.

Marconi was seized by Sergt. Louis Di Sessa and his brother, Special Officer Peter Di Sessa, after Judge Cutler had found no probable cause to hold him and his companions. They were Michael Pinto of Everett st., Everett; Salvatore Cantone of River ave., Medford, and Joseph Modica of Summit ave., Chelsea. Manolian, whose wound was not serious, failed to identify the men as his assailants.

It was stated that Marconi was taken to Boston headquarters for questioning in the Castelone shooting.

Police said Marconi had $300 in his possession.

In the meantime, expected reprisals in the two slayings were believed delayed through the postponement of the funeral of Diamante, which had been scheduled for today.

POLICE SURPRISED

To the surprise of police, who were on hand to prevent any outbreaks, it was learned the funeral had been postponed until tomorrow at 10 a. m. Services will be held in St. Anthony's Church, Revere, according to plans. It was reported the funeral had been put over to permit the attendance of a sister of the slain man. She is on her way from Chicago.

THIEVES FIRE ON ARMORER

Sergeant Charles Edwards, armorer at Commonwealth Armory had a narrow escape from death early today when two prowlers fired on him at the armory.

One bullet hit the insignia on the cap, tore off the emblem, scratch-wounded Edwards on the scalp and came out the top of the cap, which had been tilted back on his head. Other shots missed him, but he emptied his revolver at the intruders and believes he wounded one of them.

Edwards was aroused by a noise in stable No. 1, in the rear of the armory, shortly before three o'clock. He investigated and reached there in time to see two youths leaving. One of them had a bundle. He shouted for them to halt. Disregarding his order, one of the youths wheeled and opened fire.

When the shooting was over, Edwards telephoned the Brighton police station, and Lieut. Lawrence Waite and a detail of four patrolmen hurried to the armory in the police car.

They missed Edwards, who was enroute to the police station.

GERMANY FACES MARTIAL LAW IN ELECTION CRISIS

16 KILLED AS REDS BATTLE NAZIS

100 Wounded as Gunfire Marks Three Clashes; Troops Called Out

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND
Universal Service Special Cable

Berlin, July 18—Martial law loomed for Germany today after at least 16 persons were killed and between 60 and 100 wounded in Communist-Fascist gun battles in Altona, Fuerstenwalde and Griefwald, Pomerania.

In view of this continued bloodshed in political clashes incidental to the campaign preceding the July 31 Reichstag elections, the government is expected to move drastically today to suppress Hitlerite and Red demonstrations.

CAVALRY CALLED OUT

Minister of Interiority Karl Severing of Russia ask Chancellor Von Papen to restore the ban on all party "storm troop" uniforms and limit election demonstrations to "non-dangerous areas."

Thirteen were known dead as the result of a Red-Nazi fight in Altona, suburb of Hamburg, and 50 were hurt; two Nazis were killed and 17 wounded by Reds at Griefswald, and one was killed, 12 were wounded and 160 Reds arrested at Fuerstenwalde, near Berlin.

Police, unable to cope with Reds attacking Nazis at Fuerstenwalde, had to call out a cavalry squadron of the Reichswehr. The mounted soldiers, equipped with steel helmets and machine guns, subdued the Reds. This was the second time Germany's "Versailles treaty army" had been called out in a week.

Police at Hamburg, near Altona, declared the fighting, which lasted almost midnight last night, was the most serious since the revolution, even surpassing the bloody Nazi-Communist riots of Berlin a few years ago.

The entire police force of Hamburg and Altona was sent into action with rifles, machine-guns and armored cars. They were aided by rooftop snipers, both Fascists and Communists, reports stated.

HOSPITALS FILLED

The battle began when 6000 Hitlerite "storm troops," parading through the workers' district of Altona, were fired upon suddenly from all sides, homes, windows and stores, by anti-Fascists, most of them Reds. Police declared the Reds had secretly prepared for the ambush.

The Hitlerites returned the fire, and rushed houses, attempting to seize the snipers. Police were then called. The anti-Fascists erected barricades and met the police with a fusillade of bullets.

Police refused to report the exact number of killed and wounded, but hospital chiefs said emergency quarters were more than filled with wounded. The district in which the fighting began was closed off by police, with no one allowed to enter or leave.

ROOSEVELT ON HIS WAY BACK TO ALBANY

Calls on Col. House for Conference After Rousing Reception at Hampton Beach

Little Boars Head, N. H., July 18 (INS)—Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic presidential nominee, was motoring back to Albany today with assurances of Democratic leaders that he will poll a record-breaking vote in the normally rock-ribbed Republican New England States.

Tanned and rested by his six days' cruise in a 40-foot yawl along the New England coast, the governor is prepared to plunge into an intensive campaign for the presidency as soon as he disposes of some pending state business at Albany.

"I never felt better in my life and I'm ready for a real campaign," he said.

He planned a brief stop today at Beverly Farms for another conference with Col. Edward M. House. This will mark the governor's second conference with Col. House in the last few days. The colonel was aboard the governor's yawl in Marblehead harbor on Saturday and discussed the presidential campaign for an hour.

HOUSING RECEPTION

The governor stayed last night at the summer cottage of his oldest son, James, overlooking the ocean. Between playing with his little granddaughter, Sarah Delano Roosevelt, and catching up on some of his mail, he did not get to bed until after midnight.

"It seemed strange to sleep in a real bed again after being tossed around on the water in a six-foot bunk for a week," the governor said.

He characterized his cruise along the New England coast from Portland, Jefferson, N. Y., as the "finest vacation" he has had in years and he expressed hope he could duplicate it next summer.

The Governor was given a rousing reception yesterday at Hampton Beach. Police estimated the crowd at 50,000. Men, women and children were jammed in the main street and for a quarter of a mile along the beach.

TURN IN POLITICS

Because it was Sunday, Roosevelt refused to talk politics, but limited his 15-minute speech to a discussion of his yachting experiences along the New England coast.

He recalled that when he was assistant Secretary of the Navy in the Wilson administration, the "boys" in the Portsmouth navy yard presented him a gold watch.

"I carried that watch for a good many years and then gave it to my boy James, who has it with him here today," the Governor said.

In introducing Gov. Roosevelt, former Mayor Small characterized him as a "great leader who is eminently qualified to fill the great office of President."

After the reception, Mayor James M. Curley of Boston presented Gov. Roosevelt an oil painting of himself.

"The artist has attempted to depict the supreme courage that makes Franklin Roosevelt a great man," Curley declared. "He has all the qualities necessary to restore prosperity."

SOLONS PRAISE HEARST VIEW ON DEBTS

Congressional Leaders Acclaim Publisher's Address on Cancellation

Washington, July 18 (US)—William Randolph Hearst's radio address, "The Debt Cancellation Conspiracy," drew praise from congressional leaders.

Senators and representatives declared Mr. Hearst's views summed up succinctly and vigorously their own views of Europe's attempt to escape a bounded obligation and saddle an additional burden of $11,000,000,000 on the already overburdened shoulders of the American people.

Universal Service's poll of Congress revealed not a member in favor of cancellation. Further, any effort to affect cancellation under the guise of revision of the debts will be strenuously fought, with an overwhelming majority insisting Europe must live up to its contractual obligations.

DEMOCRATIC VIEWPOINT

Rep. Rainey of Illinois, Democratic floor leader in the House, speaks the Democratic viewpoint when he remarked in a formal statement that the House, in approving the Hoover debt moratorium, added a condition expressly "safeguarding the country against cancellation."

The Democratic convention adopted a plank opposing cancellation. The Republicans remained silent.

Some Congressional leaders were fearful that President Hoover, now that Congress is adjourned and he has a free hand, might make some move toward debt revision downward. It is not expected, however, that such negotiations would be revealed until after the elections.

Senator Robinson, Democratic leader, has criticised the President as "favoring a policy of debt revision."

CONGRES HOLDS WHIP

Congress in the end will hold a whiphand over the administration if it proposes revision. Any agreement will have to be approved at the Capitol.

Senator Robinson, (R) of Indiana declared:

"I agree entirely with Mr. Hearst about the debt conspiracy. I think the whole Lausanne plan was a scheme to load the debts on the backs of the American people and to make us pay for the war. It is outrageous and we will fight it. I think Mr. Hearst has performed a valuable service in the country by pointing out the debt conspiracy."

Garner has already promised to go to California in the campaign and if Mrs. Garner gets her wish, she will see considerable of the United States before returning to the capital before the short session.

Mouse's Cheese Meal Brings Death to It and to Snake

Clarkson, Ont., July 18 (AP)—Pelts of a snake and a mouse hang today from the cabin door of a veteran newspaper man—testimony greed brings doom to animals as well as man. Lured by the aroma of Roquefort cheese, the mouse gnawed its way into the log cabin.

Sated, it fell prey to the snake, which had followed through the same aperture. The snake was found dead, its distended body jammed in the entry-hole during a hurried exit-attempt.

AL STILL THORN TO ROOSEVELT

By LOUIS SEIBOLD.

New York, July 18—If Alfred E. Smith heeded the advice of some of his friends, he would (1) organize a new party, (2) enter the August primaries as a candidate for United States Senate or (3) "go fishing," and come back when it is time to elect the next mayor.

After his unhappy retreat from Chicago, he announced that he had received many thousands of letters and telegrams giving him all sorts of advice. Some urged him to bolt the nomination of his old pal and political ward, Governor Roosevelt.

PLATFORM ACCEPTED

Smith has already settled the question of bolting his party. He has accepted the platform, including his own repeal plank, on the basis of 100 per cent.

It is possible Smith can be induced to shake hands and make up with Roosevelt—with reservations. It is not likely that he will assent 100 per cent to the administration of himself.

NOMINEE SEEKS CONTROL

Governor Roosevelt has already indicated his purpose to assume control of the Democratic state machine, including Tammany. There is little doubt he intends to throw the weight of his friend Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for governor.

Some of Smith's friends have urged him to challenge the leadership of the presidential nominee by advocating the nomination of Senator Robert F. Wagner for governor.

Such a maneuver, if accepted by Senator Wagner, would provide an inviting opening for the "Happy Warrior" to don the mantle of a senator.

Garner Agrees With W. R. Hearst on Debts

Indianapolis, July 18—John N. Garner, Speaker of the House of Representatives and Democratic candidate for the vice-presidency, today emphatically agreed with the policies expressed by William Randolph Hearst in the radio address delivered by the publisher Saturday night on "The Debt Cancellation Conspiracy."

Garner declared the United States to be today much worse off in regard to unemployment and in many other ways than European nations pressing for cancellation of debts, and said he would fight every attempt made in that direction.

Mr. Garner made his comments en route from the capital to his home in Uvalde, Texas.

"I have been and always will be in agreement with Mr. Hearst's opposition to the cancellation of European war debts, as outlined in his radio address Saturday night.

"The eleven billion dollars owed by the European nations to the United States comprises not the money sent by us to help them defeat the Germans, but huge sums lent subsequent to the war to aid them in their reconstruction projects.

"You can't make it too strong from me that it is the duty of the United States to collect those we owe. And I do not take any stock in the fine-drawn arguments of European nations as to their so-called inability to pay."

Walker Case Ready for Decision by Roosevelt

Albany, N. Y., July 18 (AP)—A busy week is ahead of Gov. Roosevelt here.

The Mayor Walker case, unemployment relief, next year's budget and even the possibility of a special legislative session will occupy a good deal of his attention.

Mayor Walker's reply to the charges of Samuel Seabury, counsel for the Hofstadter legislative committee that investigated his administration, is expected in Albany before tomorrow. Seabury has postponed a scheduled European trip until the reply is in the governor's hands.

The Democratic presidential nominee will determine whether Mayor Walker be given an executive hearing, summarily ousted or exonerated of Seabury's charges that he used his office to personal advantage.

Pint of Whiskey Leads to Killing

Providence, July 18 (AP)—Steve McGoldrick, 30, father of four children, died today, and Thomas F. Flynn, 64, barge captain of Staten Island, N. Y., is held on a charge of murder as the result of a quarrel over the change from $5 after buying a pint of whiskey yesterday. Police say Flynn admits shooting McGoldrick.

HOOVER LAUDS RELIEF BILL

Washington, July 18 (AP)—President Hoover thinks the huge relief bill he plans to sign tomorrow will do "great service" to the nation and is a "strong step toward recovery."

He included these words in an announcement yesterday that he would approve the measure. He also referred to the comptroller for a ruling the bill that kept Congress at work until nearly midnight Saturday—that to establish the home loan bank system.

G.O.P. Won't Let Belgians Starve

—By Arthur (Bugs) Baer—

The Republicans are going to receive us the Hoover way.

That means you can't starve if you are a Belgian.

The money goes to the boys whose pouches are already so tightly packed as a mother kangaroo watching the neighbor's children.

The lawmakers certainly have leaped from pillar to column in their efforts to bring disorder out of chaos. And we are say with Shakespeare, "For this relief, many cranks"

Yes sir, the corporations get richer and the retailer takes bicarb of soda.

We wouldn't have minded so much if the usual members had clung to any one of the many good ideas offered.

But they discarded everything like a poker player drawing to a lone deuce.

FRANCE OPENS DEBT DRIVE

Paris, July 18 (US)—The first gun has been fired in the French campaign to obtain action from Washington in wiping out Europe's $11,000,000,000 war debts to the United States at a dime on the dollar.

This would mean that American taxpayers would be burdened for a generation with paying more than $10,000,000,000, while the European nations' war debts would be only $1,100,000,000.

It was declared, however, that Britain, France, Italy and Belgium who agreed to make the $714,000,000 German reparations settlement depend on American debt revision would have a harder time dickering with America than the Germans had in striking a bargain with their creditors at Lausanne.

Frederic Leahy, in an authoritative article in the usually semi-official Temps, declares the United States must realize that Europe's debts "to cap with one less" the work done at Lausanne.

Otherwise, Leahy foresees complete repudiation of war debts by the European nations following Germany's failure to continue reparations payments.

NEGRESS NAMED AS MONKS' WIFE

Startling revelation that the woman arrested by San Francisco police last night as the wife of Albert E. Monks, son of a wealthy and prominent Boston family, who has been missing for 19 months, was a Negress, was made today.

The woman, who declared she was Sallie, was booked as "black" and held for detectives from San Diego. She had been sought by San Diego police since the vanishing of Monks in November, 1930.

Albert L. Sawyer, who was arrested with her, was released last night. Police had held him in the belief he might be the dead woman, supposed uncle of the woman, who is also wanted by police.

Officers declared that letters and documents found in the woman's possession led them to believe she was a French Negress. She is dark complexioned. She declared her name was Moore and that she was white, but refused to answer any other questions. Police insist that she is Mrs. Monks.

Wife of Admiral Beatty Succumbs

Dinsley, Leicestershire, Eng., July 18 (AP)—Lady Beatty, daughter of the late Marshall Field, Chicago merchant, and wife of Admiral David Beatty, one of the most noted of Britain's sea heroes, died in her sleep last night.

She had been ill several days.

Non-Boomerang Tear Gas Bombs Adopted

Chicago, July 18 (AP)—Chicago police today remain dry-eyed. They have adopted a non-war tear gas bomb, which renders the victim helpless in 15 seconds. The bombs and thus cannot be boomeranged back at the police, as some of the old ones could.

King's Names Made Easy for Britons

London, July 18 (AP)—Young Britons won't have to wrinkle brows any more learning the names of all the English kings. A thoughtful manufacturer has provided them with a pocket knife with the names engraved on the handle.

BALTIMORE PIER STILL AFIRE

Baltimore, July 18 (AP)—Three railroad piers smoldered and burst into flames in spots today as firemen continued their work of hours to gain control of one of Baltimore's biggest and most spectacular waterfront fires.

Seven firemen and one volunteer were injured and 25 other firemen were affected by smoke.

DUBLIN SPURNS BRITISH GOODS

Dublin, July 18 (INS)—The retaliatory tariff war between the Irish Free State and England took two steps forward today when the cabinet meeting with President De Valera determined a list of reprisal duties that the government believes will do most harm to Britain and the people of Dublin put into effect a boycott of British goods.

While the boycott is not sponsored by the government, it is understood that no action will be taken to stop the movement, expected to spread to all sections.

While these moves were in progress, the only legislative act necessary for a formal declaration of a tariff war was the passage of the reprisal bill by the Senate. While the supporters of De Valera are in the minority in the Senate, it was expected that the measure would be passed.

Empress of Britain in River Crash

Montreal, July 18 (AP)—The liner Empress of Britain, on which the British and several delegations are en route to the Ottawa Imperial conference, was in collision with the tramp Briarwood today near Red Island, in the St. Lawrence river, it was reported to the head office of the Canadian Pacific Steamships.

Neither ship was badly damaged and they were able to continue toward Quebec.

Yawl Used by Roosevelt on Cruise All-N. E. Product

The mystery of Myth II, Governor Roosevelt's yawl in his recent cruise along the New England coast, has been solved. Unlisted in Lloyd's social register of yachts, the origin and past history of the craft that carried the Democratic presidential nominee has remained unknown to salts and experts.

She was built by hand in a backyard in Essex. Therefore when "Skipper" Roosevelt swung her into New England water, she came not as a stranger but as a wandering daughter returning home.

She is a New England boat, built in New England from New England timber. William Rose of Essex built her during the winter of 1926 from designs of B. B. Crowninshield, naval architect, for Dr. Eugene Crockett of Boston, who has a summer home in Ipswich.

Frederick E. Crockett, youngest member of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, then a freshman at Harvard, and his brother, David, did most of the work on Myth II going down to Essex every weekend. Most of the lumber used in building her was cut around Essex and the rest of it came from Maine boards, broken up in the Essex shipyards.

When spring came she was towed down to the water by two teams of horses with half the population of Essex shoving behind.

The Crockett boys used her four years, but she was too big for what they wanted, and in the spring of 1930 they sold her to Prescott Huntington of Smithtown, N. Y., from whom the Roosevelt party chartered her. Thus she went Democratic.

According to Frederick Crockett Myth II is an exceedingly fast and able boat, with ample room for a large party.

Edwin Cates, Former Shipping Man, Dead

Hillsborough, Cal., July 18 (AP)—Edwin W. Cates, 58, former Boston shipping man and father of Louis S. Cates, Salt Lake City copper magnate, is dead. Cates retired from business 30 years ago.

Funeral services will be held in Boston Saturday.

Bacardi, Noted Rum Manufacturer, Shot

Santiago, Cuba, July 18 (INS)—Facundo Bacardi, vice-president of the rum distillery bearing his name, was shot and seriously wounded in the Biella cafe today.

Ball Player Drowns After Dive in Pool

Chattanooga, Tenn., July 18 (AP)—Howard Freigau, Knoxville infielder, was drowned today in the pool of the Chattanooga Golf and Country Club.

He dived off the tower about 20 feet high and struck his head on the bottom.

Clemmey Probes Robbery

Taunton, July 18—State Detective Francis W. Clemmey has taken charge of the investigation of the armed robbery of $300, the property of the town of Raynham.

CAPONE FACES RUM CHARGES

Chicago, July 18 (INS)—Al Capone, at present manufacturing pants in Atlanta, Ga., and penitentiary, appears to be facing still more trouble.

Federal prosecutors, it was learned today, will seek prohibition conspiracy indictments against the deposed gang chief and 200 members of his syndicate. The indictments will charge the syndicate with doing a $100,000,000 business in beer and liquor.

Evidence was gathered in a year's investigation by fifteen special agents in eight states.

The investigation, it was said, covered the years from 1923 to date. It was alleged that Al Capone's ally, Frankie Lake, had enormous years was from $5,000,000 to $6,000,000.

Carol Loses, May Be Ousted as King

Budapest, July 18 (INS)—King Carol's regime has been placed in a precarious position as a result of his overwhelming defeat in the parliamentary elections yesterday, and he may even be forced to relinquish his throne and flee Rumania, political observers believe. Carol's failure to cope with the economic crisis since his return from exile has caused growing unrest.

Dice Game Robbed

New Bedford, July 18—A dice game was held up by a group of armed men who escaped with about $4000 taken from 25 players.

LUSK SEES DRY LAW DOOMED

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Rufus S. Lusk, legislative officer of the Crusaders, anti-prohibitionist group, said in a statement today that June, 1933, will go down in history as the month in which prohibition blew up.

He listed things that happened in that month, enumerating among others the announcement by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for repeal; victories by anti-prohibitionists in Florida and North Carolina congressional elections; the Republican and Democratic prohibition planks; statements by numerous persons favoring either repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment or reabolition of prohibition.

FOOD POISONING MAKES 300 ILL

Massillon, O., July 18 (AP)—More than 300 persons were suffering today from a mildly believed ptomaine poisoning, apparently from food eaten at a luncheon yesterday in connection with the Communist party's state ratification convention, here.

Approximately 300 were stricken. About 100 were kept under treatment, several in a critical condition.

The luncheon consisted of potato salad, luncheon meats and coffee.

All available doctors were called in, when nearing adjournment, delegates began appealing for aid. Soon available doctors, nurses and ambulances were summoned. Private cars and police wagons were pressed into service. Boy Scouts brought cots and blankets from a nearby camp.

The patients were placed two in a bed at the hospital until all beds were occupied. Many lay in the halls. Some were left on the hospital lawn, while scores were taken to a Y. M. C. A. gymnasium and to the Knights of Malta Hall.

U. S. INSISTS ON ARMS CUT AIM

Geneva, July 18 (INS)—American disarmament delegates went into conference with the French delegation today in an effort to smash the Anglo-French entente regarding security and the American aims embodied as prominently as possible in the resolution adjourning the conference until November.

Four big questions remained to be settled. They are:

1. Whether the existing naval truce, expiring Nov. 1, will be extended, and if so upon what terms.

2. Abolition of large mobile guns, opposed by the French until the caliber of battleship guns is decided.

3. Abolition of air-bombing, which the French will accept only on condition that civil aviation is internationalized.

4. Substantial reduction of effectives.

SHERIFF GETS A NOTE NAMING N. Y. GANG

Libby's Young Husband Had Feared for His Life After a Romance Near Manhattan

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 18 (INS)—New York racketeers planned to "bump off" 20-year-old Zachary Smith Reynolds, according to information received by Sheriff Transou Scott investigating the murder of the heir of the R. J. Reynolds tobacco millions.

In a letter received by the sheriff from a man signing himself "Captain Gene Mazur," dated New York, the sheriff was told that a "mob" had planned more than a year ago to kill young Reynolds.

The sheriff has asked New York police to check the information. New York authorities reported there was no such phone number as one given in the letter.

The theory that a hired gunman figured in the mysterious shooting of Reynolds on his sleeping porch after a gay party is among many being considered by the sheriff.

There are many indications that Smith Reynolds feared for his life. Mrs. Libby Holman Reynolds, Broadway musical comedy star and widow of the victim, testified at the inquest her husband always carried a gun, was afraid of kidnapers, insisted on carefully looking the house each night; that they had heard footsteps on the Reynolds' estate several times recently, and that he suffered a fear complex.

FEARED AUTO THAT NIGHT

She testified that when they were spending a vacation in a cottage at Fort Washington, Long Island, Smith jumped out the window and ran two miles when "somebody came in the door."

She also testified that on another occasion Smith put a dummy in his bed and slept on the floor.

On the night he was shot, Reynolds displayed apprehension concerning the arrival of an unexplained automobile, which, he told F. Hayward Kramer, his tutor, had driven in and parked near the house.

The sheriff was attempting to find out the identity of the man who asked two Winston-Salem citizens the way to the Reynolds estate an hour or so before the shooting.

In addition, there has been no satisfactory explanation as to why young Reynolds should have given his pocketbook to Ab Walker, his friend.

The pocketbook contained $80 and private papers.

BROTHER MAY FINANCE

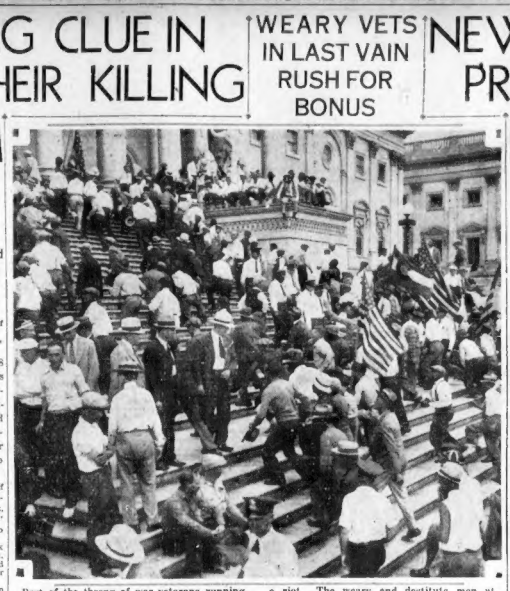
Sheriff Scott believes it possible that the gangs which have preyed upon wealthy men visiting the white light district became at least interested in teh two rich Southern boys.

The sheriff has no funds for a wide investigation outside the county, and it was believed that Richard Reynolds may volunteer to finance a thorough investigation.

The bank accounts of Smith are being checked in an effort to learn whether he had made any unusual payments to anybody.



Part of the throng of war veterans running up the steps of the Capitol building in Washington, during the demonstration staged by the bonus marchers which nearly resulted in a riot. The weary and destitute men attempted to mass at the doors and appeal to congressmen in their hopeless fight to obtain payment of the bonus certificates.

MOVE TO CLOSE STATE FARMS IS STARTED

Boy Shot in Back by a Guard; Convict With Face Scarred Died of "Heart Attack"

BY WILLIAM R. HUTCHINSON

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 18 (INS)—A drive to force Governor Doyle E. Carlton into ordering all Florida prison camps abandoned was opened here today by the congregation of the Calvary Baptist Church, after hearing Al F. Gorman, foreman of the Duval County Grand Jury, charge that Arthur Maillefert, youthful New Jersey prisoner, was murdered by camp guards.

Gorman headed the grand jury which indicted two guards for the "torture death" of Maillefert.

He told the congregation, which is the largest in Florida, that the Maillefert case was not an isolated case. He declared there was a boy prisoner at the Raiford Prison Farm, near here, who had been shot in the back by a guard. He said another prisoner died three weeks ago at the farm, his face covered with scars, his death being attributed to heart failure.

PROBE DEMANDED

The congregation was so aroused by Gorman's talk that it adopted a resolution demanding that Gov. Carlton investigate the prison system, praising the grand jury and pledging its co-operation to Gorman.

The Rev. Dr. Allen C. Shuler, pastor, criticized Gov. Carlton's "lack of action" in the prison scandals, ignored the release of the two guards on $5000 bail and appealed to his congregation to help root out the prison camps. He is a cousin of the famous Rev. "Fighting Bob" Shuler of the Trinity Methodist Church of Los Angeles.

The resolution, adopted unanimously by the congregation, read:

"Resolved, that the Calvary Baptist Church go on record as heartily in accord with the action of the Duval County grand jury in their investigation of the prison system of the State of Florida and pledging our support in their work.

DEATH DEPLORED

"We, as a church, deplore the death of this young man, Maillefert, who was alleged to have been murdered in the prison camp.

"We are resolved that the church, as a church, call on the Governor of Florida for a rigid investigation of the prison conditions of the State and that the church pledge Mr. Gorman and his jury every assistance and co-operation in his work as a grand jury."

Gorman told the congregation he had received five death and kidnaping threat letters. He declared though, he would continue the grand jury investigation of prison conditions.

Touching on further prison scandals, Gorman said:

SHOT IN BACK

"There is a boy, lying out at the Raiford prison farm in a plaster cast, who told me he was shot in the back by a guard while lying on the ground. He was wounded four times before the guard came up and shot him in the back. There's a case which ought to be investigated.

"There was another prisoner, who died at that farm three weeks ago. He had scars all over his face, which were never explained, but they said he died of heart failure."

Gorman said he would see that both cases were investigated, although they were not within the jurisdiction of his grand jury.

Indicted "Torture Death" Guard Is Missing

Jacksonville, Fla., July 18 (INS)—Capt. George W. Counson, indicted on a first degree murder charge for the alleged "torture murder" of Arthur Maillefert, youthful New Jersey prisoner, had disappeared today from his home near Sunbeam prison camp.

The indicted guard captain was reported to have loaded his furniture on a truck Saturday and driven away with his family.

County officials said they would seek him, because he is at liberty under $5000 bail on the murder charge to appear for trial in September. His bail would not permit him to leave the state.

KEATON'S WIFE TO ASK DECREE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Hollywood, July 18—"There isn't the remotest chance of Natalie and Buster Keaton becoming reconciled. Natalie will sue for divorce in Los Angeles asking for the custody of the two boys and the family home, Jerry Geisler has not yet determined what grounds will be stated in the complaint. Mrs. Keaton does not wish to have any unpleasant publicity over the divorce.

Friends have hoped for a long time that things would right themselves in the Keaton home, but today Natalie said it was out of the question. Despite this, Buster planned to ask for a conference with her today. She and Buster celebrated their 11th wedding anniversary in May and until only a year ago there has been no friction between them. Buster's contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer expires in October, but I believe there are options and so far there has been no indication that it will not be renewed.

Treasure Buried in 1613 Is Dug Up

Moscow, July 18 (AP)—Building workers here turned up a clay box which contained a cache of several pounds of old silver coins dating from the reigns of Ivan the Terrible and other Russian rulers of the 16th and 17th centuries. Historical experts believe rich Moscow merchants had buried the coins during the Polish offensive in 1613.

It Costs Girl and 3 $80 to Dance Nude

The spirit of springtime alleged to have been in the hearts and heels of pretty Agnes Kelly, 20, of Ferry st., Everett, and three youths who were dancing Saturday night in a house in Francis st., Roxbury, cost them each $20 today in Roxbury court.

According to the testimony, not only pretty Agnes, but Otis Cantello of Ferry st., his brother, Ames, of Francis st., and Harold Men it of Forest ave., Everett, were all in the pink during their dancing—the pink being visible because all were innocent of clothing.

They pleaded not guilty, but Judge Hayden guessed that the police were right and imposed the fines.

SHOTS FIRED IN R. I. RUM RAID

Tiverton, R. I., July 18—Several shots were exchanged between prohibition agents and rum runners at a raid on the farm of Joseph Cavacco early today. Four men were arrested and 110 cases of liquor seized.

A fifth man escaped after returning the fire of the federal men, narrowly missing Agent Francis L. Stevens.

The prisoners, taken to New Bedford for arraignment before U. S. Commissioner George H. Lilly, were booked as:

Charles T. Almy, Arthur P. Camara and Joseph Cavacco, all of Tiverton, and L. J. Sanivias of New Bedford.

The farm, on the Massachusetts-Rhode Island line, had been under surveillance some time, according to authorities.

When the agents ordered their prisoners to load the liquor on a truck one hoisted for the woods. Agents fired two shots which they claim were returned by the fleeing man, one of them passing close to Agent Stevens.

AIMEE VERY ILL, FEAR DEATH

Lake Elsinore, Cal., July 18 (AP)—Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist, was reported by her physician today to be in such critical condition that "the slightest shock probably will result in her death."

"Her condition is extremely critical," Dr. Edward H. Williams, the physician said. "She absolutely must not be disturbed if she is to recover.

"I have instructed her attendants to see that no one, even her husband, must attempt to see her."

STAR FREED IN WAR ZONE HOP

Brest, France, July 18 (INS)—The former "Sonny" Jarmann, famed as an American musical comedy star; her mother, Mrs. Lilly Jarmann, a New York singer, and four English companions were released from the custody of Brest authorities today after having been detained all night for flying over a prohibited war zone in Brest harbor.

The pilot of the plane was Francis Francis, former lieutenant in one of the British Royal Horse Guards who was forced to resign when he married Miss Jarmann. In accordance with an old guards custom, a member is forbidden to marry into the theatrical profession.

Glider Pilot Covers 65 Miles for Record

Elmira, N. Y., July 18 (AP)—A new record of 65 miles for glider flying had been chalked up today for the entrants in the annual national gliding meet here to fly at.

With nothing but the wind to propel him, Pilot Martin Schempp of Pittsburgh, Pa., flew his glider to Gellatt, Pa., 65 miles away. The record was 17.6 miles.

Relentless Search Goes on for Baby Lindy Slayers

Trenton, N. J., July 18 (AP)—The light of publicity no longer shines on the search for the murderers of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby, but through the dark channels of the underworld the hunt goes on.

On May 13, the day after the body was found, President Hoover ordered:

"Make the kidnaping and murder of the Lindbergh baby a live and never-to-be-forgotten case."

His instructions were issued to federal agencies, but were accepted as a welcome command by state and city officials as well. The case is still very much alive and there is no possibility that it will be forgotten while the baby killers will roam free.

The state police station at Alpine still is operating as a headquarters for the hunt. Sixteen detectives are on permanent assignment on the case with members of the municipal police forces of Newark and Jersey City.

Tips still are received daily and every one is run down. State and city investigators who have put aside their uniforms for civilian garb slip away at frequent intervals on secret missions, the results of which are known only to them and their superiors.

Back of this drive stand both Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, superintendent of state police, who has been in immediate charge of the case ever since the baby was kidnaped, and Gov. A. Harry Moore, who has also from the first been active in spurring every police agency in the state to unflagging effort.

And so some day there may come a sudden turning in the long trail of pursuit at which the hunted criminals will be brought at last to bay. It is that day toward which every man engaged in the search is looking with a gaze that never falters.

ILEANA AWAITS STORK IN VIENNA

By ALFRED TYRNAUER

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Vienna, July 18—The first Hapsburg baby to be born in Vienna since the overthrow of the royal family is expected toward the end of the week to Princess Ileana of Rumania, wife of Archduke Anton von Hapsburg.

Princess Ileana entered the Auersperg Sanatorium wednesday, previous to which she and Archduke Anton had been living in the villa town of Moedling, on the outskirts of the Austrian capital.

As soon as the infant is born, it will be wrapped in a cloth bearing the double crowns of the father and mother—the Hapsburg imperial insignia and the royal ensigns of Ileana's Rumanian and Hohenzollern lines.

Many gifts have already been received for Archduke Anton's expected heir, but Princess Ileana still awaits one which she will prize highly. This is the complete baby outfit presented by Vienna's Socialist burgomeister to the mother of every child born in Vienna.

JAIL BEATING RETOLD

Memory brings back the ache to the head of Paul Blechman of Chicago, who says he was beaten with a club as formidable as the one he is holding, when he was in a Florida prison camp similar to the one in which Arthur Maillefert, 19- year-old New Jersey youth, was tortured to death. Blechman was arrested in 1930 for riding on a freight train. At that time he was 22. After a 30-second trial he was sentenced to a month on a road gang. (International News Photos.)

Here's a story combining business with philanthropy. For lack of orders, a widely known maker of men's suits told us he had hundreds of idle workmen. They must go back to work. He was willing to produce suits at bare cost. He had the material from one of the big woolen concerns in the country. Can we get the price under $20? Under $18? Under $15? We figured and refigured. The deal was closed! As the work progressed, we examined every yard of the fabrics. We tested them. We tested the linings. For this sale MUST be a success! So remember—Tested all wool suits! Strong linings! Sturdy silk threads! A collection of new shades unrivaled at this price! Rich grays, light tans, deep browns! 100 different patterns! Now! For the greatest suit bargain we've been able to offer since 1915.

Girl About Town

—By ALYCE SIEMENS—

Big Head-Liners:
They never answer letters,
Or send a photograph.
They only do things publicly—
That type gives me a laugh!

They'll sing for all the newsreels,
They'll visit poor and sick,
But don't forget reporters
Can make those cameras click!

They'll sign a check, "with pictures,"
They'll even climb a mast!
But we who pay admissions
Soon see that they don't last!
—"MEG."

Mayor's Brown Book

"When you are in Washington (and you should be there now) may I come in to see you?" is what Al Jolson scribbled in that gold-embossed leather autograph book of Mayor Curley's that you hear so much about . . . When celebrities visit City Hall . . . Autographs from every country in it—in Chinese, Japanese, German, Swedish, Irish and Hindu lettering . . . Our Mayor is as proud of that book and pleased over receiving a new autograph as the autograph hounds who're haunting our stage doors in such hordes this summer . . . Pola Negri's bold, broad scroll is the one he'll point out to you especially . . . He's never been able to figure it out! . . . Bob Ripley put in a neat little four words . . . You guessed it, "Believe it or not" . . . With the Scotch Harry Lauder actually giving a swell full-page caricature of his clever self . . . There's Eamon de Valera's "Beyond all telling is the Destiny that God has in mind for even the fearless" . . . And the shaky signature of Edwin J. Foster, Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic . . . The very simple and neat lettering of Prince Takamatsu and his Princess . . . Champion Jack Sharkey's "My best to the best" . . . Ireland's Traveling Ambassador, Emmett Moore, who signs himself "an Irish as the hills of Erin" . . . Ernestine Shumann Heink and Fritzi Scheff have signed the brown book . . . The Russell Boardmans, the John Polandos . . . The clear and palns-taking autographs of the Horning Indians . . . The fascinating Japanese letters of the envoys from Japan, Kimi Ashino and Keiko Nakamura . . . Sophie Tucker, Estella Taylor, Buck Jones, Sue Carol and Nick Stuart, Bing Crosby, Donald Brian — all from stage and screen lands . . . And the gabby radio "Gossipers" had their "fingers in the pie" and John Glenn's in the Mayor's big book . . . The most unusual autograph was that of Geoffrey O'Hara who expressed his thoughts of Mayor Curley in measures of music . . . And the most prized signatures were those of Cornelius Vanderbilt and Floyd Gibbons . . .

Kaleidoscopic Flashes:

Standish Wilcox's retentive memory of those good old days in Boston . . . Nice back-stage manners of RKO Keith's Jimmy King . . . Lynn's Alice Brown Martin's keen figure and golfing on Tedesco Country Club's links . . . The barbering of the weepy-willow in the center of Jamaica Pond . . . Pilot Richard Karklin's agreeableness . . . Blushes of City Hall's Jimmy Tobin . . . Art of following golf yarns used by Fred Corcoran, stat golf handicapper . . . Deer shouting in the balconies of lonely local cinema houses! . . . Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird's long hair bob . . . Libby Lewis' return to town in her gay toggery after five weeks of summer stock leading lady-ing with the Altoona, Pa., company falling to pay off . . . Helen Chase Dahb's sudden surprise upon seeing her eight lines of verse in the current issue of Lit. Dig. . . . Chicago's Madeline Woods' so-tight raspberry suit . . . Society Sweet Elizabeth Cram's exquisite dress . . . The Elliot Child's Charles F. Heffenger and his sleek pompadour . . .

From the Memo Pad:

Wonder if that big insurance company that's interested in the touring one will be sued for slander this week! . . . Gene Dennis hates punching a clock and there are those about theaters who'd hate to punch stars! . . . Residents are not digging clams for those who'll buckle on the Caps this summer . . . One Cape Codder averaged a century note a week taking his little Evinrude boat out from shore, applying his huge grappling hooks and towing a couple of barrels of mustn't-have-drops to shore . . . Getting $35 per barrel!

16 Couples Left in Dance Marathon

A nightly feature at the Revere Beach Dance Marathon, held in the Marathon Arena at Revere and the Boulevard, is the floor show in which the contestants for the prizes participate. Songs, sketches and dances afford evening's entertainment. Dick Edwards is master of ceremonies. There are only 16 couples left out of the 30 couples that started more than three weeks ago. They have danced more than 500 hours and are still going strong. Some of the dancers claim that they will be able to continue until Columbus Day unless their feet give out.

Rich Merit on Screen and Stage

Lubitsch to Start Work on Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, July 18—I know of no one who approaches the making of a picture more deliberately than Ernest Lubitsch. He never rushes into production unless he is sure he has the right cast and you couldn't bribe him to pass on a story unless he is certain it is right for screening.

He is getting ready to direct "The Honest Finder," his first picture under the new contract with the great big salary for Paramount. And one by one he is assigning the roles. Edward Everett Horton, excellent comedian, was put under contract Saturday for the Lubitsch opera.

Louella O. Parsons

Miriam Hopkins returned home Friday and was immediately given a copy of the script to read. She and Kay Francis share honors as feminine leads with Herbert Marshall as the chief Romeo.

Another for Joan

Three months ago I wouldn't have given a nickel for the chances of "Salomy Jane's" ever being produced. It was handed from one director to another on the Fox lot. Then Winfield Sheehan came home and started getting the Paul Armstrong play into shape by assigning Joan Bennett and Ralph Bellamy the leads. There was some talk a little while ago of Marian Nixon in the part, but merely talk. Marian, I am told, was the bit of the luncheon given at the Fox studios in honor of the Finnish athletes here for the Olympic games. Her father and mother were born in Finland and she speaks Finnish. You can imagine the delight of Paavo Nurmi to have her chat with him in his own language.

Lilyan Goes to Work

Lilyan Tashman will discard the red and white bathing suits and the pink silk pajamas to go to work this week. She has signed to play one of the featured roles in "Those We Love" with Samuel Bischoff. In looking over this cast I am impressed with the way Bischoff has gathered by this independent concern. Important enough, all of them, to headline a picture made by one of the major studios. Kenneth MacKenna and Mary Astor have the leads with Evelyn Brent in a featured part.

Hawks Signed

Here is one time when a relative doesn't get a job because he needs one. Howard Hawks has signed with his brother-in-law, Irving Thalberg, as a producer-director for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Three other companies were hot-footing it after Howard and he only consented to go to M-G-M because he felt they were making the best pictures. At that there is a little clause in his contract giving him permission to direct a Howard Hughes special when the young millionaire gets tired playing around and settles down once more to business. A treatment has been written for "Lulu Belle," which makes it less censorable and, provided Mr. Hawks and Irving Thalberg agree on that particular script, it will be his first picture.

Hollywood Chatter:

They tell a characteristic story of Lupe Velez. She decided to buy a car so she sent for a demonstrator to show her the latest model in a popular American make. She rode around town and seemed on the verge of buying when she saw another car in a show window. "That is the one I want," she said. The agent tried his best to take her attention off the show window, explaining to her the beauties of the American made car. "No, that is the one I want," she insisted. "Go and get that one." The other car, a Deusenberg, was on display and nothing would do but the demonstrator must stop and let Lupe take a ride. It proved all she expected and much to the discomfiture of the salesman she bought it. Those who went to the premiere of "Strange Interlude" won't forget it in a hurry. The biggest crowd ever seen at any first night surged into the streets and in the way of the cars. Policemen seemed almost unable to stem this tide of eager humanity. Yet it wasn't an unkind crowd. Everyone merely wanted to get a look at his favorite star.

Snapshots of Hollywood

DOROTHY MACKAILL, many pounds lighter, in fact more slender than she has ever been, home from her personal appearance tour. COUNTESS FRASSO in a Paris creation, escorted to the premiere of "Strange Interlude" by GARY COOPER. MARY PICKFORD with them. COL. CLARENCE YOUNG getting his first glimpse of a real Hollywood premiere at the Chinese. BILLIE DOVE accompanied by the devoted DAVID MANNERS. Still looks like a romance. MARION DAVIES looking lovely in pink trimmed in fur. ETHEL BARRYMORE thrilled over her first radio talk. She spoke at the premiere. ELSIE JANIS accompanied by her young and handsome husband at the GOULDING party. TALLULAH BANKHEAD out for the first time after case of tonsilitis. REBA MEREDYTH taking a bow for her job on the continuity of "Strange Interlude." MARILYN MILLER, DON ALVARADO, BEBE DANIELS,

Gala Program for Bowdoin Square Patrons

There is at the Bowdoin Square Theater a most entertaining bill of two film hits with seven vaudeville acts. The pictures are "Attorney for the Defense," and "Shop Angel." The seven acts of vaudeville include Sherman and Vaye, in "The Silent Partner"; Jimmy Downing as master of ceremonies; Wilfred and Louise, acrobats; Campbell and Brady, juggling novelty; Ted and Art Miller, singers; "The Haunted Violin," novelty act, and The Clements Duo, eccentric steppers.

Miss Foskette at Fine Arts

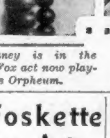
At the Fine Arts Theater this evening, preceding the 9 o'clock showing of "Der Kongress Tanzt," there will be a half-hour program by Miss Frances Foskette, soprano. Recently Miss Foskette sang selections from "Das Lied ist Aus," which she played at the Fine Arts during the past two weeks, and "Congress Dances" over the radio during her weekly programs. She will include selections from both films in her program this evening.



Frances Foskette

Margaret B. Richardson, concert pianist, will share the program with her, playing several piano solos. Mrs. Richardson had had many concerts, appearing throughout New England, and is president of the Music Lovers' Club of Boston.

Strong Cast in New Film

Readers of Faith Baldwin's "Week-End Marriage" will find the plot interestingly told in screen style, the photoplay being featured at the Fenway, Modern and Beacon. The cast is an excellent one, topped by Loretta Young and Norman Foster, who are satisfactory as the husband and young wife who have all sorts of ups and downs before they find happiness. Other good names in this new Warner success are Aline MacMahon, George Brent, Vivienne Osborne, J. Farrell MacDonald, Grant Mitchell, Luis Alberni, Richard Tucker, Roscoe Karnes and Thomas Jackson.

The co-feature is "Flames," in which Johnny Mack Brown does superb work.

AT RKO KEITH'S

Exceptionally Strong Bill at Keith's; "Tom Brown of Culver" on Screen

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Rich merit on screen and stage is again the RKO Keith lure. The stage bill has more "names" than any since the new policy was inaugurated, but the vaudeville class isn't a mere matter of famous folk—throughout it is excellent, in acts big and little. And the photoplay, "Tom Brown of Culver," is surprisingly good, with an interesting story smartly and snappily unfolded, with the cameras going in strong for action.

There's a trio of "names"—Grace Hayes, Rosetta Duncan, and Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle. All three are welcomed by the audience, the offering of each is cordially received and applauded; but the laurels must be divided among other turns on the program.

Miss Hayes is most engaging, as usual. And in superb voice. One notes the new "bob," and we observe inwardly that we liked her better when she was letting her hair grow. Here she is singing "Lovable" most charmingly then telling her stories, which she can always do to the queen's taste. She imitates Pola Negri's rendering of "Paradise" and gets a great hand. She has a set-to with the "mike," and that permits her to introduce her son, an handsome youth of whom we have heard her mother-ly praise but had not seen before.

Miss Duncan is equally a favorite. Rousing plaudits greet her, and her songs go over in a triumphant sort of a way. There's a thought of her sister Vivian as she sings, and then she quits naturally brings out the old "Topsy" business, which begets more handclapping.

Mr. Arbuckle in the course of his act introduces his wife, and his act builds up quite a neat happiness atmosphere. The good-natured fellow, before he is through, has everybody wishing him all the bliss in the world and that home in sunny California that he sings about. The one-time screen star is assisted by a "stooge," the pair slamming one another to beat the band, all for fun's sake.

The Roxy Theater Ensemble sings brilliantly, and is one of the major numbers on the bill. Cass, Mack and Owen, with nokum comedy and dancing, the Ganjou Brothers and Louise Orth with songs and stepping, and strong, as do also Herman Bing and Miss Mona in a sketch "Bit Different."

"Tom Brown of Culver" is one of the best of the pictures of collegiate type. Director Wm. Wyler deserves special credit for the manner in which he has filmed the panorama. Most of the scenes give good account of themselves, notably Tom Brown, as the youth, Richard Cromwell, Lil Warner, Slim Summerville, Andy Devine, and Russell Hopton.

Leon Janney, Young Film Star, Tops Sterling Bill at Boston

Hollywood, having sent abundant adult talent into vaudeville, shows one of its young "stars." Leon Janney holds the spotlight at the RKO Boston, and proves a delightful personality. His boyish mood captivates the house, and his act has entertainment value.

Though Janney is the headliner on the variety program, he is not the whole show by any means, for excellence is the word with the rest of the bill. "A New Job" serves Glenn and Jenkins, Negro laughter-provokers, as a vehicle wherefrom to tap much humor. The others on the generous bill are Mann, Bradford, and Wallace; Al Tyler and Ethel Bailey in "Laugh Awhile," the star of which is our old friend, Wally Sharpies; Cass and Lehn and Miss Georgette; and "The Hollywood Rush," with Yvonne Mc and the Co-Ed Sisters.

On the screen Constance Bennett and Lowell Sherman shine in "What Price Hollywood," and entertaining movie which includes many flashes of happenings behind the scenes of filmdom. Sherman turns in sterling characterization as director for Miss Bennett, who is cast as a girl who wins fame in the cinema.

THIRD DEGREE DEATH PROBE IS OPENED

Minneola, N. Y., July 18 (INS)—Formal inquiry was instituted today into the mysterious "third degree" death of Hyman Stark who died Friday night after he was subjected to eight hours of questioning by Nassau county police.

Dr. Otto Schultze, who performed the autopsy, took the witness stand and testified that the prisoner died of a fractured larynx. The larynx was broken by a blow in his opinion.

"Could the would have been caused by someone holding his head back and pressing with a thumb?" asked Dist. Atty. Elvin N. Edwards.

"Yes, it could," replied Dr. Schultze.

He added that the body of Stark was marked by many lacerations.

Stark and three other men arrested Friday after Mrs. Valeria Hizenski, mother of Joseph Hizenski, of the Nassau county police, had been beaten and robbed in her home in Roslyn. For eight hours Stark was questioned by a succession of detectives. At the end of that time he was rushed to a hospital. He died 20 minutes later.

HEIR GUARDED FROM GANG

he personally received a letter and postcard from the kidnapers.

The day after his arrival he received a letter demanding $20,000 with the statement that the longer he waited the more the kidnapers would ask. A day later he received a postcard telling him to "quit stalling" and saying the gangsters had seen him at the movies the night before.

The card was signed "J. L. Jones." Both were turned over to state police of the Blackstone, R. I., barracks, and the guard over the boy was increased.

GANG TOO WEARY

Two days later a letter demanding $25,000 was delivered to the elder Comstock and the following day a letter instructing him to leave the money at a spot in the Providence depot was received.

Police inserted an advertisement in a Providence paper agreeing to the instructions and the sum was placed in the designated spot while police laid a trap to snare the gang. The gangsters failed to appear and the next day the elder Comstock received a letter telling him they had warned against calling in the police and not to let it happen again.

This letter demanded $35,000, to be handed over before September. A short time later an advertisement appeared in Rhode Island and Boston newspapers asking for better directions. The same message was flashed on the screen of the Elizabeth Theater here, and two others in Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Later Comstock's father received another letter directing him to leave the money near the Falmouth postoffice. Once again police laid a trap and watched at the spot fruitlessly for five days and nights. They will be withdrawn from the place today.

It is also understood that young Comstock and his bodyguard will leave their hideout at the Inn today and seek a new location. No word has been heard from the gang since last Tuesday, but police officials believe they are marking time, being aware that police have laid a trap for them at the rendezvous set here.

W. R. Hearst, Jr., to Present Placque

New York, July 18 (US)—William Randolph Hearst, Jr., will take off in his amphibian plane tomorrow for Plattsburgh, N. Y., where he will present to the La Salle Military Academy pistol team the gold-bronze placque for marksmanship donated by his father.

The presentation will take place at a battalion parade at 4:30 p. m. Mr. Hearst will be the guest of Col. George A. Herbst, commanding officer.

4 Held in Finland "Kidnaping" Plot

Helsingfors, Finland, July 18 (AP)—Four farmers from Lapua were arrested today and accused of an attempt to kidnap Defense Minister Lahdensuu. The minister was at his country home in a Lapau parish when the men appeared and ordered the company to stick up their hands. A fusillade of bullets was the answer and the Lapua men withdrew.

Fighting Dr. McCarthy Is Freed

Patrolman Lowney, "that he does not wish to prosecute because the doctor has a high reputation and has suffered enough, both physically and from the publicity."

Why, in view of this kindly attitude, the department went through the motions of applying for a warrant on the basis of the alleged attack on Mrs. McCarthy was not explained.

PATTERSON AGREEABLE.

Nothing was said about the attitude of Traffic Officer Robert W. Patterson, but Patterson, peering out behind the beefsteak served as second course to the shiner presented him in the battle, likewise had agreed the doctor was too shifty an opponent to be taken on again.

That Dr. McCarthy, when subdued after five policemen had been summoned to his office, was really taken into custody on a charge of assault and battery is entered on the police journal at the Back Bay station. It reads:

"4:45 p. m. today, Patrolman Jorn Lowney of the division arrested Dr. Humphrey L. McCarthy, 479 Beacon st., on charge of assault and batter yon wife Ellen F. McCarthy. Officer Lowney suffering from possible fracture o hand."

No entry was made, however, in the arrest book at the station and when the doctor left the station with three policemen for the City Hospital, he was, consequently, not under arrest.

After he had talked with Supt. Crowley and with Dr. McCarthy,

Woman Once Beat Officer Doctor Hit

The fact that Dr. Humphrey McCarthy was able to give Patrolman John Lowney a shellacking doesn't necessarily make out the medico to be any great shakes at fisticuffs. A woman once gave Lowney a shellacking.

Mrs. Margaret Broder, 48, of Pleasant st., Brookline, was arrested in the Public Gardens last year after she is alleged to have beaten the patrolman with her fists, and kicked him where she considered it would do the most good.

Patrolman Lowney appeared before Judge Thomas H. Dowd in the warrant session of Municipal Court. He was accompanied by Lieut. Max Thormer, who admitted responsibility for failure to book the doctor when he was taken to the station.

LOWNEY' SOWN STORY

Thormer made out the application for a warrant and told the court Lowney "can give testimony, as he was one of the men involved in the investigation and was beaten during the melee."

Lowney testified:

"Following a reception at the Hotel Sheraton in Bay State rd. last Saturday, Dr. McCarthy went to his home on Beacon st. with his wife. While cruising along Beacon st. in a police car my attention was called by a citizen to screams coming from the apartment where Dr. McCarthy resides.

"I went into the apartment and found the doctor in a delirious condition. His wife had been assaulted. She spoke to me of it.

"Dr. McCarthy and myself became involved in a discussion concerning the euteries from the apartment. We then became embroiled in a melee in which the defendant and myself were injured.

"Following his arrest, I spoke with Mrs. McCarthy about the assault. I could not locate her this morning. I finally found that she was with friends and over the phone I learned that she did not care to prosecute any complaint."

WHAT THE JUDGE SAYS

Judge Dowd said:

"In view of these facts, you did not witness the assault, therefore I cannot grant you a complaint of this kind on your testimony. If Mrs. McCarthy does not complain—no warrant."

Only one complaint was made.

Supt. Crowley was asked whether there would be an interdepartmental investigation because Dr. McCarthy was not booked and he said:

"No, we consider Lieut. Thormer used his best judgment. I was assured there was no liquor in this case."

GOES TO SEE CONQUEROR.

Patrolman Lowney, who was known as "Smacker" before he was smacked by Dr. McCarthy, was on sick leave today. Fashionably attired in an attractive dressing of white gauze and splints, he dropped into 479 Beacon st., the office and home of Dr. McCarthy, and the scene of Saturday's devastation.

The call was of a purely social nature, although there was a rumor that Patrolman Lowney was taking his injured hand back where it came from, in order to have it X-rayed by the man who gave it to him.

Dr. McCarthy received the tossed-in towel graciously and conferred at some length with his late antagonist. A lawyer was also present. The latter deplored the whole affair, but said some statement might be made in 48 hours.

Police officialis were reluctant to discuss the match and it could not be determined whether any medals were being struck off for presentation to the new champion, who stands six feet, weighs 200 pounds.

The decision of the police department not to seek a warrant against the doctor raises a fine question as to the rights of a citizen who elects to stage scenes of violence and resents the interruption of police,

LOWER POWER RATE BY ZONE PLAN URGED

The Edison Electric Illuminating Co. of Boston should charge for electricity according to zones, it was contended by Frank H. Sullivan of Woburn today at a hearing before the State public utilities commission.

The hearing was on a petition of Mr. Sullivan and another of Former Senator Joseph J. Mulhern of Dorchester for lower rates to business concerns and householders.

Jackson Holtz, law partner of Mr. Mulhern, said he sought information on contracts of the Edison Co. to determine whether excessive brokerage commissions were paid in the purchase of coal.

Sullivan said he understood the company was going to run lines from its Kneeland st. plant to Huntington ave. to supply one customer with steam. "That is an absurdity and should not be permitted," he added.

Most of the information sought by the two petitioners in their 76 questions will be answered by Atty. F. M. Ives, for the company, next week. The commission took under advisement the question of compelling the company to answer the remaining questions.

MA WANTS BABY JAILED

the infant was today in a South Boston back yard laughing and cooing and plunging his soft white face into a bowl of ice-cream.

"I saw my sister last Friday," Mary Kelly said. "She asked me to fight hard for her. She cried. She is so lonely without her baby. She wants him with her. And she is entitled to have him with her under the law. She ought to get him."

The baby's mother was sentenced on charges of drunkenness.

She was first committed to Sherborn on October 6, 1927, and remained there until April 25, 1929, when she was paroled. She was later returned on June 3, 1929, and served the remainder of her term.

SENTENCED AGAIN

Last May she was again arrested and again the gate of Sherborn closed on her.

But mother love, the greatest love of all, reached beyond cell bars and prison walls.

A mother wanted her baby.

If there was nothing else in the world, there was "Bunky Doodles," and his love, so his aunt revealed today, "is keeping Bessie up with a stiff upper lip."

"She has got to have him," the sister continued. "It isn't right to separate a mother and child, no matter what she has done. Bessie isn't a bad girl. She has a big heart and, believe me, that heart of hers sure does want this little boy. I have stood by my sister. I have taken godo care of the child.

"He calls me mummy."

As she talked the aunt made preparations to go to the courthouse to take up the cudgels for her sister and to demand of the law the permission her sister has petitioned for.

SNELL DEFENDS HOOVER REGIME

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Fault finding by Democratic leaders with President Hoover's leadership today brought a reply from Representative Snell that the chief executive sponsored all the constructive legislation enacted into law this session.

"His leadership has been preeminent from the very beginning and if the work done by Congress this session turns out to be successful he is entitled to the credit for originating the ideas," the House Republican leader said.

Snell, who shortly will notify Hoover formally of his renomination, was commenting on statements issued by Senator Robinson and Representative Rainey, the Democratic leaders, in which they criticized Mr. Hover, charging lack of leadership.

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Reno is still Reno-meaning that the census bureau found today that Nevada in 1931 reported a bigger increase in divorces than any other state.

But Reno is also Reno—meaning that the census bureau found that Nevada likewise had a bigger increase in marriages than any other state.

The divorce increase was 101.6 per cent; the marriage jump 25.1 per cent.

For the whole United States, marriages dropped to 1,060,000, a decrease of 6.1 per cent. Divorces slumped 4.1 per cent.

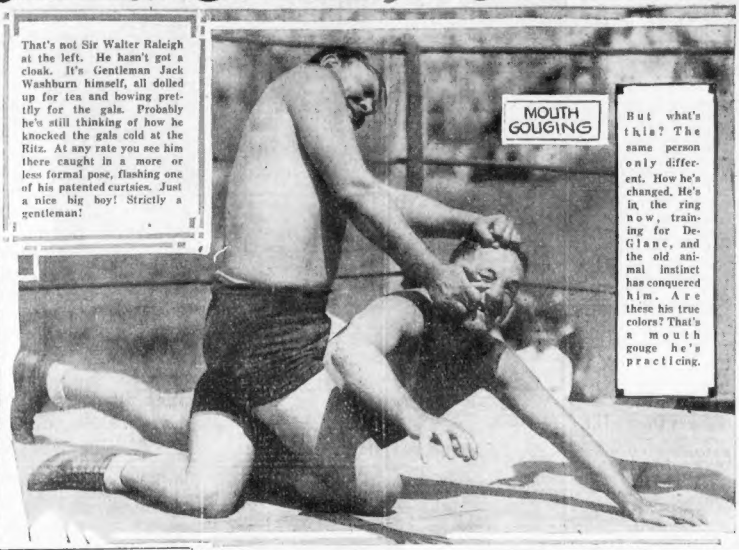
U. S. OLYMPIC TEAM STRONG BUT UNBALANCED

This is Gentleman Jack!! Decide for Yourself!!

That's not Sir Walter Raleigh at the left. He hasn't got a cloak. It's Gentleman Jack Washburn himself, all dolled up for tea and bowing prettily for the gals. Probably he's still thinking of how he knocked the gals cold at the Ritz. At any rate you see him there caught in a more or less formal pose, flashing one of his patented curtsies. Just a nice big boy! Strictly a gentleman!



But what's this? The same person only different. How he's changed. He's in the ring now, training for DeGlane, and the old animal instinct has conquered him. Are these his true colors? That's a mouth gouge he's practicing.

ROBERTSON GIVES VIEWS ON SQUAD

Palo Alto, Cal., July 18 (AP)—The main battle now looms ahead for the American Olympic track and field team, emerging today with a few ear-aches and sore muscles after the record-smashing final tryouts and the intersectional sharpshooting along the sidelines.

Despite the utter abandon with which Uncle Sam's best athletes performed, cracking open four world records, equalling two others and surpassing the best Olympic records in 10 out of 18 final events, Head Coach Lawson Robertson and his assistants expressed the belief they will be hard-pressed in the international competition at Los Angeles.

Said Robertson:

"This team seems stronger than four years ago in the short-distance races and high hurdles. We have some great vaulters and jumpers, but all-around balance is lacking. We will be outclassed in all the distance races and may not do as well in the field events as we did at Amsterdam. The pol vault, high jump, discus and probably the shotput offer our best prospects of victory outside the track, where we may be fortunate to win as many as three or four events."

The standouts among the 68 athletes who have gained places on the track and field squad include:

1. Ralph Metcalfe, Marquette University negro sprinter, who led home his Olympic mates, Eddie Tolan and George Simpson, as both 100 and 200 meters, as the coast favorites. Bob Kiesel, Frank Wykoff and Hec Dyer, were eliminated and relegated to the 400-meter rela ytearn, along with Emmet Toppino, Southern star.

2. Bill Carr of Pennsylvania and Ben Eastman of Stanford, arch rivals at 400 meters, both world record breakers, and either capable, if in top form, of running the Olympics field dizzy.

3. Norwood Penrose Hallowell of Harvard, in the 1500 meters, which he won in the American record time of 3:53.7, surpassing the Olympic mark, in a race that saw the elimination of Gene Venske, world indoor mile record holder.

4. Jack Keller, George Saling and Percy Beard, a trio of record-cracking high hurdlers, who finished in that order as Keller tied the world mark of 14.4 seconds for the 110 meters.

5. Bill Graber of Southern California, with an amazing world record vault of 14 feet 4½ inches, made as he broke a deadlock with Bill Milleer of Stanford at 14 feet 1½ inches, which also tops the best previous record.

6. Leo Sexton, whose 52 feet 8 inches in the shotput, and John Anderson, whose 165.54 feet with the discus, surpassed the listed world records.

There are at least a half dozen

When the River Tiger Strikes at Your Jock Scott

"A feller isn't mean,
Out fishin';
His thoughts are mostly good and clean
Out fishin';
He doesn't knock his fellow-men,
Or harbor any grudges then
A fellow's at his finest, when
Out fishin';

A feller's glad to have a friend,
Out fishin';
A helpin' hand he'll always lend
Out fishin';
The brotherhood of rod an' line
And sky and stream is always fine
Men come real close to God's design
Out fishin'.

The rich are comrades to the poor,
Out fishin';
All brothers of a common lure,
Out fishin';
The urchin with the pin and string,
Can chum with millionaire an' king,
Out fishin'.

A fellow isn't plottin' schemes,
Out fishin';
He's only busy with his dreams,
Out fishin';
His livery is a coat of tan;
His creed—to do the best he can;
A feller's always mostly man,
Out fishin'."

OF COURSE it's a thrill of thrills when one of those Kings of the River, a 12 to 30 pound hook bill salmon, comes boiling up out of the depths to snatch your Silver Doctor or Jock Scott. And the long half to hour and a half struggle you have landing him helps to make salmon fishing one of the most exhilarating of all sports. We don't blame Lionel Hitchman, former Bruin captain, for talking for years to come of his landing that 30 pounder, the record fish of the St. John's, nor Charlie Warmuth, the Devonshire st. restaurateur, for eternally singing a saga of that 12 pounder, which struck like a Jack Dempsey and for 45 minutes put up a battle which for sustained interest carried all the thrills of the Dempsey-Firpo embroglio. In his first rush Charlie's fish took out 200 feet of line in a mad spurt straight down the river. Three times he broke four feet clear of the water, shaking his head in mid-air like a wild stallion. And twice after Charlie apparently had him beaten and within a few feet of shore ready for the gaff he rallied and in a silvery boiling rush went straight across the wide stream with the reel whining and the rod bent double under the strain.

BUT ALL the pleasure of fishing isn't in landing the fish. Of course, neither Hitch nor Charlie would have missed landing those silver kings for the proverbial farm. On the other hand, even if we hadn't had a single strike Charlie and I probably would have decided the fun we had well worth the 500 mile auto ride from Boston. We spent two days and eight fishing hours of a third day before we got the first strike. King salmons don't grow on bushes, you know. A sou'easter came ashore out of the Bay of Fundy the first day in camp and for two days we fished in a continual drizzle. Fished without having anything but bass and chub, which we threw back, take our flies. Silver Doctor, Silver Wilkinson, Marr Lodge, Black Dose, Brown Ferry, Jock Scott, we tried them all, but in vain. All in vain until approaching sundown of the third day when that 12 pound tiger of the water suddenly came up in a mad silvery leap on Charlie's Silver Doctor and the big fight was on.

WE CROWDED heaps of fun into those three days of waiting, three days of constant whipping of the St. John's, ten miles up stream from Fredericktcn, first on one side of the canoe, then the other, casting in two foot increases from 15 to 50 feet and then dropping down stream for another ceaseless cover of the water. The half mile length of Hart's Pool, the small stretch of quick water on Little Choky, the half mile stretch of the Mountain Pool, where the pines and spruces and hemlocks march down the hillsides to bathe their feet in the silver waters, we fished them all, from sunup to sundown, and for three days with nary a strike. But always was there wild life about us, always something to intrigue one's fancy.

EVER and anon a fish would jump clear of the water, sometimes near our canoe, sometimes far away. What's that "V" in the water over there by the willow? We look closely and see it is a swimming muskrat. We see deer sign on a pebbly beach where the deer come down to drink. We catch sight of a martin slinking through the reeds. A loon calls on our side of the river to be answered by its mate on the other. Kollie Wheeler, our guide, is telling how a cow moose came

Here's another little trick. It's called slugging and is sometimes looked upon as rather out of place in the wrestling ring. But like kneeing it's very effective and is a great equalizer if your opponent is doing too good. The kayo fore-arm is one of Gentleman Jack's specialties and it's usually enough. But in case it isn't well—it's just too bad, the Gent gives 'em this and makes 'em like it. (With this evidence before you it shouldn't take long to decide the question—"Is Gentleman Jack a Gentleman?")

And this? Well, if you've seen Gentleman Jack before you know that this is kneeing, unpleasant for his opponent but very effective. Is it an instinctive gesture or something originated for an emergency? And is it a gentleman's trick? You could ask Mr. DeGlane about that after next Thursday night. Chances are he'll know then—though, according to Gentleman Jack, the tea hound, it may be some days before he is conscious enough to explain.

HYDE NINE TO PLAY STONEHAM

Well into the second half of the season, the pace-setting Hyde Athletic Shoemakers top the four-game bill on Suburban Twilight League parks when they meet the Stoneham Cubs at Ponsworth st.

Frank McCrehan's North Cambridge K. of C. nine, in second place in the league and winners of three consecutive tilts in their last three starts, are now tied with the Cambridge Red Sox. The Sox break the deadlock in their game with the Arlington Pals at Raymond st. tonight.

Hall's All Stars will ojurney to Melrose tonight to meet the Melrose City club at Mesenger's Meadows. Since both teams are well placed in the first division in the Two League, a loss for either team will drop the losers a peg or two.

The fourth important game scheduled for tonight will see East Boston H. N. S. the home team against Winthrop Town team at Airport Field, East Boston.

HENRI SET FOR ROUGH STUFF

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Marlboro, July 18—Henri DeGlane, heavyweight wrestling champion of the world and all other places, is more burned up than an L st. brownie because his opponent of next Thursday night's charity show at Braves Field, Jack Washburn, is grabbing off all the publicity.

Henri, in condition to meet a dozen panthers in a hand to hand battle, fussed and foamed in his camp today when the newspapers were shown to him with the beaming countenance of "Gentleman" Jack smeared all over them.

"What do I care eef he can do this 100 and eez mixed with the society people. What eef he can dreenk tea weedout speeling it on his pants?

"It makes no deeference whether he was een the frontline trenches or not to me. I was there myself. Why should he be puffing up because of theez theengs.

"If eez going to be a wrestling match, that is what I hope. But eef Washburn wishes to make rough weed me I will make it rough weed heem. He says in the journals that he eez going to punch me until I do not know what I am doing.

"This is what I do not want—theez punching stuff. But I can punch, too. I will punch him until his nose bleeds and his face and ears look like red wine. Then I will throw him out of the reeng. This is no newspaper talk—what you call ballyhoo—it is what I am going to do if the referee will not make Washburn wrestle as the rules say."

Washburn Sure He Will Win Mat Crown

(This is the sixth of a series of articles in which "Gentleman" Jack Washburn tells his life story.)

By "GENTLEMAN" JACK WASHBURN
(As Told to Jack Conway)

Toots Mondt told me he was directing a wrestling war against Paul Bowser in Boston. He asked me to step into the Hub and lead the drive to knock Bowser, DeGlane, Sonnenberg and the rest of the opposition right into Massachusetts Bay.

Mondt had wrestled Stanley Stasiak, Strangler Lewis and other famous stars in the City of Culture. He knew the fans demanded action. He felt my style would win favor, and that I would mop up all rivals.

I stood in the ring at the Boston Garden and defied the world. I didn't pick my opponents. I announced I was ready to meet all comers.

Henri DeGlans was the fellow I was most anxious to tackle. This was natural in view of the fact the Frenchman is the world's champion.

The title holder, however, refused to meet me. So I took on Pat O'Shocker, Rudy Dusek, Bandor Szabo, Tiny Roebuck, Jim Londos and some lesser lights.

I gave the huge crowds which turned out to see me in action plenty of thrills, but they were not anything compared with the thrills I got as I fought my way from the ring to my dressing room following my matches.

The night I licked O'Shocker I was lucky I was able to write back home again. When I wrocked Pat with a knee to the mid-section and a couple of punches to the jaw, the crowd started leaping from the balconies.

Max Schmeling didn't take as much punishment from Jack Sharkey as I got from the crowd between the time I left the ring and landed in my dressing room.

A doctor was kept busy for three hours sewing cuts on my dome and face. I got $5000 for my end of the purse that night, but I sure did earn my dough.

I had Londos licked when his hand-picked referee disqualified me. The Greek cannot stand the rough stuff. He is merely a poser and wouldn't get to first

RUSSELL FACES HOSE EX-MATES AT FENWAY

RED SOX OUT TO PUT JACK ON 'SPOT'

By JOE CASHMAN

Big Jack Russell, whom the Red Sox swapped to the Cleveland Indians for Pete Jablonowski, will face his old payroll mates at Fenway Park today and needless to say the Crimson Hose will be out to make Big Jack look smaller than a midget with stunted growth.

And once again the fans, and quite a few of them are going to Fenway these days, will have an opportunity to see that Bob Quinn is another Trader Horn and not just a customer with astigmatism in the baseball market.

Quinn is a very canny business man and has the players in his league very well tabulated. Take a look at Alexander, Johnson and Dolley. And then glance downtown way and see how Danny MacFayden has been doing even with the almighty support of the Yankees. And then give in.

JABLONOWSKI IMPROVING

Of course in the particular case of Russell ex. Jablonowski it may look as though the Indians got a lot the better of this transaction. But Jablonowski is showing signs while Russell has been around long enough to be a much better flinger than he is.

The slugging Sox will be out to kill two birds with the same bludgeon today. They want to show up Jack Russell for, even if they can't take Mr. Quinn's club out of the cellar, they certainly can give him plenty of consolation as he gazes upon his bartering. And they also want to win their first game this season from the Reddskins.

Believe it or be wrong, the Red Sox have beaten every team in their but the Indians, and eight games have been played. In the Sabbath double-header, with any sort of luck they would have not only won one from Cleveland, but possibly two.

TWIN KILLINGS BEAT SOX

Three disastrous double-killings by the Indians just about checked every move the Sox made for victory in the first game. And in the second contest they fought back to a tie and filled the bases in the 13th, only to fail to toss in the winning punch when it would have meant a ball game.

Smead Jolley was the "goat," missing up on three beautiful opportunities to whack the Red Sox over the Cleveland line. But Smead must have an off day now and then, and the 12,000 fans didn't find any cause for feeling sorry for they saw a pair of nifty ball games.

By taking two ends of the twinbill the Indians kept within shouting distance of the Yanks. And keeping up there is something for the Yanks might run out of gas some day soon and stall. Stranger things have happened.

The Indians, however, are not thinking of pennants. They're just in there playing the best ball they know. It's a very drab and colorless club, these Indians. There are few stars and little ballyhoo attached to the club.

Bread Used By Ton at Olympics

Olympic Village, Los Angeles, July 18 (INS)—Just as an army moves on its stomach so do athletes prepare to break records on three squares a day.

Statistics from the commissary department of Olympic Village, in which eventually some 1800 athletes of 48 nations competing in the games of the Tenth Olympiad, will be housed, bear out this assertion. With less than a sixth of the complete army now being fed, 900 loaves of bread of assorted kinds are being consumed daily in addition to 50 dozen rolls.

Rice in a popular food, with 100 pounds being used daily. Meat consumption runs 200 pounds daily and 50 dozen eggs go into breakfast omelettes.

Milk is a favorite beverage, 75 gallons a day now being required, while 75 pounds of fresh fruit is used.

Early this week these figures will be doubled and by the end of the week it is expected daily food consumption will amount to around 250 pounds of bread, 1200 pounds of meat, 400 dozen eggs and 500 gallons of milk.

GENE TUNNEY MAY JOIN N.Y. RING SOLONS

New York, July 18—James J. ("Gene") Tunney, retired heavyweight boxing champion of the world, is slated to receive the offer of appointment to the State Athletic Commission when James A. Farley, incumbent, resigns, it was learned today.

Tunney will receive the backing, not only of Flynn, but of Leaders John F. Curry of Tammany Hall and John H. McCooey of Brooklyn, it was said in political circles.

Gene Tunney

Jim Farley

While he has a summer residence in Connecticut, where he is a major on Gov. Cross' staff, Tunney also has a home in Park ave., this city, which is his legal residence.

len Mat Bouts on Fenway Card

Ten mat bouts will be served up to the wrestling fans at Fenway Park Wednesday night, with Ted Thraine meeting George Myerson of the finals and Dr. Eddie Sullivan tackling Paul Mallaros in the semifinals.

Another bout on the long program is that between Art Flynn and Ed Mephisto.

THREE FIGHTS FOR BERG IN N.Y. TODAY

By ED FRAYNE

New York, July 18 (US)—Jackie (Kid) Berg, the best fighting man modern England has produced, will awake today to the fightin'est day of his remarkable busy career.

Through a combination of circumstances, the clean-cooking British boy finds himself matched for morning, afternoon and evening, the culminating event being a 15-round return engagement with shifty Kid Chocolate at the Madison Square Garden Bowl on Long Island.

In addition, Berg will go through a few rounds against Lew Tendler before Judge Edward Dore of the Supreme court and a round or so with Commissioner Muldoon at the official examination.

The entire program is dependent, of course, on victory over Tendler in the court session, as Lew has slapped injunction papers against Berg fighting tonight that he should not be asked to step aside because Berg failed to meet Chocolate last Monday night, as scheduled. Tendler also has filed a civil action against Berg, demanding $50,000 damages.

If Tendler's restraining order is upheld, it will be the first time the courts have overruled the state athletic commission, so Madison Square Garden has gone merrily ahead selling tickets.

Diving Queen

KATHERINE RAWLS

Talking about form, as who isn't these Olympic days, catch Katherine Rawls (above) in three shots flashing the form that won her the right to represent the United States in the 10-foot springboard diving contests at the Olympics in Los Angeles. Katherine is a 15-year-old Florida lass who expects to show the world, and particularly Californians, what it's all about next month. Above, left to right, she is shown coming out of a forward one and one-half, a back gainer and a back flip. All perfect, voted the judges, and these pictures show the judges were right.

TRIBE STAYS IN FIGHT BY TWIN WIN

Cincinnati, O., July 18—There is no question in Redland today but that Bill McKechnie's Boston Braves are the strangest troupe in the National League.

With a yawning chasm below them and facing an old hoodoo in Dan Howley's hustlers, it was up to the Tribe to cop the Sunday doubleheader.

And they did. Not in any grand manner. But they pulled the first game out of the fire when Bill McKechnie master-minded fast enough to yank his young ace, Bobby Brown, and then sent crafty old Tom Zachary out to pitch one of his best games this season and give the Warriors a double dose of victory.

Now the Braves are right back in the thick of it, whereas the Reds are right down deep in the cellar. The series will be renewed tomorrow with the Reds getting a taste of Ed Brandt, while the Braves will probably face Benton or Lucas.

Lott Winner in Colorado Finals

Denver, July 18 (INS)—Georg Lott, second ranking national tennis star, was Colorado's new tennis champion today. Lott won the finals match in the men's singles competition of the Colorado open tennis tournament from Hart Coggeshall of Des Moines, 7-5, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2.

McGraw Is Enjoying Life

By EDWARD J. NEIL

New York July 18 (AP)—John McGraw sat comfortably at his desk in the business office of the New York Giants, the wrinkle of a smile around his eyes, his face tanned and carefree, his whole attitude one of ease and contentment.

"I wouldn't manage another ball club," he said, "if you gave me the Empire State Building. I haven't seen the Giants play since I resigned, June 3. I haven't been inside the ball park.

"I made up my mind to step out and that's exactly what I've done. Right now I feel 15 years younger than I did six weeks ago. You can't imagine the worries, and the cares and annoyances I've dropped in that short time."

You'd scarcely recognize in the McGraw of the business office, the sick, weary veteran of 42 baseball years who turned his back so suddenly on the club he had piloted to 10 National League pennants and three world championships, leaving the reins of leadership in the hand of his young first baseman, Bill Terry.

FANS ON MATHEWSON

He was happy to "fan" on and on—the mystery of Christy Mathewson's fadeaway, the greatest plays and players he ever saw, celebrated boners, baseball's comedy and tragedy, and the breadth and future of the game itself.

The sinus trouble that forced one of the most colorful of all baseball characters to the sidelines has disappeared with the chills of spring. He plays golf to keep his weight down.

"I never knew until I stepped out," he said, "just how wearing it is to manage a big league ball club. "I've been in baseball since I was 16 and the burdens became greater the farther on I went. Finally they got too much.

"I decided on a Wednesday that I couldn't go on. I told Charley Stoneham, president of the Giants, that I wanted to step out. He asked me to think it over. The club was leaving Friday night for two games in Boston, a sleeper there and another one back.

"My sinus trouble was so bad that all my teeth ached, and my head ached, and I hadn't had any real sleep in a couple of weeks. My doctor told me I had to stop. So I called Stoneham. I told him I wouldn't make that trip for $5000. I was through.

"I couldn't face those sleepers."

WORKS TWO HOURS A DAY

The "Little Napoleon," most aggressive and truculent of all baseball managers, sat back complacently and shook his white head almost in wonder.

"And the strange part about it all is that there is no wrench, no longing to get back. Sometimes I sit here during the afternoon when the Giants are at home.

"It gets around 5 p. m., when ball games are being won and lost, and I haven't the slightest feeling about it, unless it's relief that those worries are over forever as far as I'm concerned.

"I do my couple of hours' work a day and I go home to Pelham Bay, off to the golf links or the race track.

"It's taken me 42 years to find out how pleasant it is to enjoy life."

STATE TITLE REMAINS IN CADDY RANKS

By BILL GRIMES

During the recent Massachusetts amateur championship at Kernwood the reign of ex-caddies as titleholders was seriously threatened by Bill Blaney.

But now the army of former and present day toters are all standard bearers for champion Eddie Kirouac, who in the past trudged around the Country Club of Brookline lugging bags, many of which were not only bigger but heavier than himself.

Over a stretch of 18 years, the Mass. Amateur championship has been won annually, with one exception, by ex-caddies. The exception was in 1923, when Karl Mosser broke through at Brae Burn, his home club.

During this period of ex-caddy supremacy, Francis Ouimet and Fred Wright have each won the title six times, while on four occasions Jesse Guilford was the Mass. Amateur Champion.

Back in 1913, Francis Ouimet, present National amateur champion, and ex-caddy, tossed a bombshell into the golf world by winning the United States open title but because that championship was regarded as a classic for professionals the reaction was not as serious after victory in the Mass. amateur.

Then Jesse P. Guilford, another former member of the caddy fraternity, came down from New Hampshire, and after being barred from the 1913 state championship by the non-resident rule, won the title in '14. From 1915 to 1920 Ouimet and Guilford bottled up every state championship. They tired of their reign in 1920 but Freddie Wright, who had lugged many golf bags, stepped in and saved the day for the caddies.

MOSSER BROKE THROUGH

Ouimet and Guilford took charge of the situation in '21 and '22, but Karl Brae Burn, his home course, which was more or less of a club affair. Karl Mosser broke through in 1923, bringing to an end a 10-year reign of ex-caddy stars.

The following year Jesse P. Guilford won at Worcester and again established the ex-caddy supremacy which has continued to date.

Only a small minority felt that Eddie Kirouac had a chance to win against his experienced opponent, Bill Blaney at Kernwood. With the exception of the New England amateur championship last year at The Country Club, Eddie Kirouac had never played in a major event.

Kirouac did not qualify at The Country Club and as he modestly admitted, if he had taken one more putt during the qualification at Kernwood, he would've been back on his job, titleless, last Thursday morning.

In judging the measure of Bill Blaney, little Eddie Kirouac defeated one of the finest golfers in New England. For years Blaney has been a threat to win the state title and Kernwood was the second time that he reached the finals. He is a former New England amateur champion and is capable of holding his own in any company.

So What?

By JOE MOONEY

Olympic stars are arriving in New York in such numbers, the custom of giving keys to the city is developing into a serious situation. Beginning this week all keys will be marked "Return to City Hall. No postage required."

They didn't use the electric timer to clock Ben Hallowell in his record 1500 meter run. But it was a great shock to Gene Venzke.

The Olympic Committee could lop a lot off the expense account by letting Babe Didrickson represent America by proxy.

The Casualty Club girl won five first places and three Olympic births for one day's work. It shows what you can expect from our able-bodied athletes.

Jackie Berg has gone ice cold over his scheduled bout with the Kxed from Cuba. Not enough sugar and too much Chocolate.

So many Annie Oakley's were disinherited for the Chocolate battle the promoters wanted to bill it as a paperhangers' convention.

The New York fire department officials were behind the movement to call the Polo Grounds a fire paper in the house, they were afraid somebody would drop a match and do a Coney Island.

Although the fight will go on tonight and they got the ring all junction to stop it as a guarantee), Berg is said to have eye trouble. Doctors say he couldn't see fighting Chocolate with a telescope.

Hyde Shoemakers Down for 3 Games

The Hyde Athletic Shoemakers will play three league games this week. Monday at Stoneham, Tuesday, Revere at Lincoln Park, Somerville; Wednesday at Dillon, Al Blanche, Providence College ace, or Danny Lynch will toe the mound for the Shoemakers next Tuesday at Lincoln Park, Somerville. Ray Ahearn, with a batting average of .560, will catch, base with me if I could get him into the ring with a neutral referee.

Strangler Lewis also ran out of town after I posted $10,000 as a forfeit for a bout here.

Then I opened fire on DeGlane. I didn't think the Frenchman would meet me either. I guess I got under his skin when I charged he was a quitter.

I found when in France with the A. E. F. that the French are a proud people and if you can get folks thinking they are afraid they will then take desperate chances to convince you of their bravery and courage.

Now that I have finally got the DeGlane bout I am quite sure I shall win the title.

I shall convince DeGlane that I am a first class wrestler as well as the toughest bird that ever stepped onto a mat.

DeGlane is a graduate of the Graeco-Roman school of wrestling which only permits holds above the waist. This explains why the champion is so brilliant when applying arm locks, headlocks and body holds.

The Frenchman isn't so hot when he attempts to score with holds below the waist. I have also seen him wince in matches when his opponents have used toe holds.

I don't wish to be accused of boasting, but I think I use a toe hold with more deadly effect than any standout wrestler since the days of Frank Gotch. It was the toe hold that enabled Gotch to win the world's championship.

Caddock taught me how to properly apply the toe hold. I get tremendous power behind this hold.

I have trained myself carefully for Thursday night's bout. I realize I shall be the standard bearer of America in a battle against a foreign champion. I shall enter the ring fit, and shall bring the world's heavyweight wrestling title back to this country.

"Gentleman" Jack Washburn will not be found wanting in this great international test.

(THE END)

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

JUST A MINUTE, FOLKS

In your pent-up excitement over the world's heavyweight championship wrestling bout between Henri DeGlane and "Gentleman" Jack Washburn at Braves Field on Thursday night, do not fail to take a peek at the supporting card.

Paul Bowser and the Christmas Fund committee have lined up the most brilliant preliminary bill ever offered at a mat show in this city.

Let's have some soft music. Now let the curtain rise.

There's Gus Sonnenberg, the old Dynamiter himself, the inventor of the famous flying tackle and favorite son of Dartmouth. Just back from Philadelphia, where he wrecked Dick Shikat in Km. at a big open air show. Gus is one of the principals in the semifinals.

Is he taking on a palooka? The answer is NO! No! No!

Here comes the bird whom Sonny will try to knock off. Take a good look at the new arrival. He's none other than Nick Lutze of Southern California, most colorful of matmen.

Sonny against Lutze, the latter the master of the reverse body slam, is a headline attraction by itself.

THIS IS NOT an animal act. Just Panther Joe Malcewicz of Utica getting ready to spring on Len Malacuso, former Colgate star.

Out near the wings you can see Ed Don George, former world's heavyweight champion, who is going to take a few shots at Jim Browning and his turn over body scissors.

WITH JACK SHERRY waiting to tip over "Tiny" Ruff, Al Morelli anxious to down Pat McGill, Charley Strack eager to eliminate Rex Smith, Casey Kasanjian set to topple Len Friblis, a wrestling newcomer.

Also take a peek at Lionel Conacher, famous hockey star, who will do his wrestling pitted against Bill Nelson.

Ruth Weaver and Bull Martin will also try to pull the ring apart.

THE PROGRAM WILL be an 8-bout affair, ranged so that the main bout will enter the ring at 10 o'clock.

There will be popular prices of $1.25, $2.20 and $3.30 for this show. Proving that Santa Claus sometimes comes a bit early. Which is perfectly proper on account of it being a Christmas Basket Fund show.

NO PROMOTER, without the assistance of the Christmas Basket Fund committee, will offer such an attraction without getting a $10 top. The Christmas Fund committee has arranged for 60,000 seats at Braves Field which will give all who wish to do so an opportunity to see the biggest wrestling card ever offered the public.

U. S. OLYMPIC TEAM STRONG

the American ranks, including Joe other possible Olympic winners in McCluskey in the steeplechase, Ken Churchill or Malcolm Metcalf in the javelin, Dick Barber in the broad jump and George Spitz and Bob Van Osdel, high jumpers.

Most observers feel the team would be better balanced if Ben Eastman had been shifted to the 800 to support Eddie Genung, also Washington A. C. champion, Charles Hornbostel of Indiana and the Michigan collegian. Edwin Turner. Genung, none too powerful, will carry the main burden in his event, where Eastman has proved himself the fastest in the world.

EASTMAN SACRIFICED

Many critics feel that Eastman, in a sense, was sacrificed on the altar of intersectional rivalry. He was thus pointed for the Olympic 400, at least partially, because of the desire to match strides with his college conqueror, Bill Carr. Although he came back with a magnificent rally Saturday, Eastman lost his second straight duel with Carr, in the world record time of 46.9 seconds.

Thereby Uncle Sam has his two fastest middle distance runners in one event, where, divided, they might contribute two Olympic triumphs.

Genung, in the 800, scored the far best early victory in the final trials as the speed merchants of the East and middle West "cleaned up." Of the 58 athletes picked for the team altogether, the East contributed 25, the far West 21, the mid-West 18, including the sprint trio that doubled up and the South 4. For intercity honors New York led Los Angeles 13 to 12.

This Olympic committees made several changes in the lineup after the tryouts. Bob Kiesel and Hec Dyer, defeated 200-meter runners, were named for the 400-meter relay, in addition to Wykoff and Toppino. This involved the elimination of James Johnson of Illinois State Normal.

WOMEN STARS AT MANCHESTER

Manchester, July 18 (AP)—Five of the great in women's tennis were entered in the draw today at the opening of play in the Essex Country Club's invitation tourney for women.

Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper of Oakland, Calif., Wightman cup star who lost the final to Helen Wills Moody last year, was top-seeded. Mary Greef of Kansas City, third ranking nationally, was seeded second, and Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn of Philadelphia, winner at Longwood Saturday, was seeded third.

Sarah Palfrey of Brookline, internationalist who returned from England last week, was entered only in the doubles.

The draw was limited to 48 players and the only seeded player other than Mrs. Harper, Miss Greef and Mrs. Van Ryn, was Mrs. Dorothy Weisel Hack of Chicago. She was seeded fourth. It was Mrs. Hack's first Eastern start this season.

The unseeded topnotchers included: Mrs. Marjorie Morrill Painter of Dedham, Josephine Cruickshank of Santa Ana, Calif.; Virginia Rice of Boston, Baroness Maud Levy and Mrs. Amy Lamme, both of New York, and Mae Cleurvorst of Wichita, Kansas.

RELIEF FUNDS SPENT FOR LIQUOR

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

(This is the seventh of the series of stories on charity swindlers of Boston.)

"Arrested for soliciting alms. Had a welfare card."

"Arrested for non-support of minor child. Was receiving welfare aid."

"Arrested for operating an automobile so as to endanger. Was being aided by the welfare department."

From police blotters have the above recent notations been taken. They are, however, but three of 152 police cases involving welfare recipients reported since the order of superintendent of police, Michael Crowley, went into effect a few months ago.

USE FUNDS FOR RUM

And of the 152 cases, 147 are for drunkenness.

ONE HUNDRED AND FORTY-SEVEN arrests for drunkenness of persons taking city charity—147 drinking their weekly rations intended for food and shelter.

From March until June, 132 arrests for drunkenness were recorded, while since July 1, 15 more have been added. Other arrests involved alms solicitation on public streets; reckless driving of an automobile (more of this case later) and that of a negligent father who took the city's money but forgot to use it to support a child.

But police arrests cover only one phase of the investigation conducted by the welfare department of those illegally accepting aid or putting the aid to illegal use.

TIPS BARE FRAUDS

Since the beginning of the Boston Evening American's expose of such frauds, countless "tips" have poured into the Hawkins st. headquarters of the department.

Special Officer Ernest F. Fanjoy, under orders of the secretary of the Board of Overseers of the Poor, Walter V. Carthy, is now searching into the affidavit made by a woman who gave a West End address, but who is believed to be permanently living at Bridgewater and to have a balance at a bank in Montello.

This woman, welfare investigators have learned, does not live in the West End address but comes to Boston weekly for her aid.

Information about an alleged woman bootlegger, also the recipient of city aid, also is under investigation. She is said to have concealed in mattresses more than $10,000 recently withdrawn from a savings institution.

I give this story today:

This applicant was an old lady who told of having no means of support. She was given $4 a week to meet her meagre needs.

In 31 weeks she received $124. At that point she was found to have $324 in a Boston bank. Before she applied for aid her balance was $700.

This woman had reduced her savings considerably before asking for help. Her case was called before the board and the woman came personally to tell her reasons for not revealing her bank account.

MONEY FOR BURIAL

"I withdrew as much of my savings as I could," she told welfare officials. "I am an old lady with no support and no relatives —no one who would bury me properly. I had no insurance. Surely you see I felt that I must have a little something to hold so that when I died my body would be buried properly. That's why I held out what I did."

From her the city took full reimbursement and her aid was stopped.

There was no prosecution.

This woman is living on the balance of her savings.

Mrs. Rose Payser, whose husband, Charles, is now out under bonds after being found guilty in lower court of defrauding the city, denied that she had a joint bank account with her husband. She said her husband and her husband's mother owned the bank account jointly and that she is an innocent victim of the entire situation.

Payser will go to trial on his appeal from a three months' sentence in superior court sometime this month.

There are three reasons for the rejection of aid to applicants by the welfare department and they are these: sufficient income, ownership of property and bad court records.

Any person in need who does not come under these three categories is entitled to aid.

PICKS SELF TO WIN 3 TITLES

Chicago, July 18 (AP)—Anyone who beats Babe Didrikson in the Olympic games will set some world records. You can take the Texas girl's word for that.

"I can do better than I did last Saturday in every event," Babe said today, "and I don't see any reason why I shouldn't win three first places. If I don't win, whoever beats me will have to set a world record."

She won five first places—in the 80-meter hurdles, broad jump, javelin, baseball throw and shot-put, and tied for first in the high jump at Dyche stadium, Northwestern University, Saturday in qualifying for three places on the United States Olympic team. In the high jump she shared a world record of 5 feet, 3 3-16 inches with Jean Shiley of Philadelphia, and set a new javelin record of 139 feet, 3 inches, but was entered in so many events that she didn't have time to do "real justice to any of them."

She does not pay any attention to what kind of marks other girls make, and doesn't even know who holds world records unless she herself is the record holder.

FANNING

WITH GEORGE UNDERWOOD

into his barnyard last year, dropped her calf and then went away never to be seen again. This spring the calf died from eating the foliage of a tree that had been sprayed with poison to kill the larvae of the Gypsy moth. Over there on the island a pair of Mother Carey's chickens are having a fearful time raising their brood. Not an hour of the day goes by when their shrill cries do not call our attention to the courageous little birds driving off invaders. Three times out of five it's a hawk. But once it was a big white headed eagle. If we hadn't paddled near the island and splashed and called loudly something certainly would have happened to that little family, despite the courageous efforts of that doting father and mother.

A GENTLEMAN of mystery is this northern hook bill salmon. Don't for a minute confuse his lordship with the smaller land-locked variety. In the Spring he comes in and out the cold Atlantic and goes up river to spawn. Where he goes, what he does after that is a mystery. After he leaves the river and gets in the open Atlantic he never is seen. Science knows nothing of his Atlantic habitat or habits. While in fresh water he never eats. Cut open a salmon's stomach after he has been in the river a few days and you'll never find anything in it. He doesn't rise to the fly to eat. He does it out of fancy, sport or pure and unadulterated cussedness.

SALMON fishing is a lot like the salmon itself. The fish never does what you expect. Man and boy, father and son, the Wheelers have been fishing for St. John's salmon for half a century. "I used to think I knew something about salmon," remarked Old Man Wheeler, as he thumbed the tobacco in his pipe, "but after 50 years at it I've come to the opinion I'm only learning." And then he proceeded to tell a little of what he did know. One of these days, when the big wrestling show and the Olympic Games are over, and space is handy, perhaps we'll write a little of Old Man Wheeler's musings. A fellow who owns up he knows mighty little of anything generally knows heaps more than the fellow who boasts he knows everything.

Awards Now Awaiting Big Innings Winners

Now get ready for the next one!

Another Big Innings entry blank with all the rules explicitly explained will be printed in the sport pages of the Boston Evening American next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Prepare to clip the entry blank and to test your skill at estimating the number of runs scored in a given inning on one day by all the big league clubs.

Many fans, who know their baseball, are beginning to show amazing skill at estimating the winning total.

The contest for this week's Big Innings awards closed last Friday at midnight.

But there's another one starting on Wednesday and there's opportunity knocking at your cottage.

The current contest, which runs from last Saturday until next Friday, Sunday excluded, started off with the seventh inning as high, 15 runs being scored in that inning by major league clubs last Saturday.

If you sent in a correct estimate of the week's Big Innings for the week starting July 9 and ending July 15 communicate with the Big Innings Editor, care of the Boston American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston. He will check your entry before an award for your skill in estimating can be made.

The correct estimate for the latter contest was: 2—7—1—1—7—1.

EASTERN LOOP CLOSES GATES

New York, July 18 (AP)—Old Man Depression has reached out and wiped one more baseball circuit off the fast-dwindling minor league list.

The Eastern League, a Class A outfit, organized 16 years ago, threw up the sponge yesterday after the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers had elected to surrender the Bridgeport and Hartford franchises, respectively.

When the two parent major league clubs withdrew their support, directors of the league quickly decided they could not continue and wound up the season with yesterday's games.

Fred J. Voss, Jr., president of the Bridgeport club, and spokesman for the executive committee, said that only three of the eight clubs were in sound financial condition and all these had major league backing.

They were Bridgeport, Hartford and Springfield, owned by the New York Yankees. Two other clubs, he said, Albany and Richmond, would be able to meet all their obligations, including players' salaries but Allentown, New Haven and Norfolk, he declared, would not.

It was the poor financial status of most of the league members that led the Giants and Brooklyn to return the Bridgeport and Hartford franchises to the league. Officials of these two major league clubs were represented as taking the view that it would be better to wind up the league now rather than suffer additional losses.

The Yankees, who retained the Springfield franchise, immediately acted to secure a new farm and announced purchase of the Binghamton, N. Y., club of the class B New York-Pennsylvania League. The Springfield players, it was understood, will be transferred to Binghamton.

Marquard Now Scout for Atlanta Crackers

Atlanta, Ga., July 18 (INS)—Rube Marquard, former big league pitcher, today was removed from the regular twirling staff of the Atlanta Crackers of th Southern Association and assigned as Scout.

Marquard, signed at the beginning of the season as a coach for Cracker pitchers, was placed on the regular roster a month ago. He did some steady relief pitching, but was unable to hold up consistently over the full route.

THIS IS LIFE

HANDWRITING ON WALL FOR POLITICS-PREACHING CLERGYMEN

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

THE STORY of the gentleman in Beloit, Wisconsin, who is trying to get back from the church the contribution he put in the plate reminds one irresistably of Mark Twain's famous yarn.

He was listening, you remember, to an eloquent preacher who was making a plea for foreign missions His eloquence touched

PROF. ROGERS

Mr. Clemens so deeply that he was on fire to contribute. He had $50 on him and he wanted to give it all and borrow more. But the psychological moment passed, the preacher went on preaching, Mark Twain's enthusiasm went down $10 at a time. And when after a long and exhausting sermon the collection was taken, he stole 10 cents out of the plate.

The gentleman in Beloit was not objecting to a long sermon. He was objecting to a political sermon, particularly a political sermon which he considered to be aimed at himself. He won't get his money back, but his example may well be a warning to ministers and congregations as well. The Protestant church has always seemed to act on the assumption that one goes to church, not so much to worship as to "hear a sermon," as if it were some kind of serious entertainment, a lyceum lecture or the like. If that is so, it might be fairer if the collection were taken after the sermon and not before, so that if the sermon did not come up to expectations, the auditor need not feel bound to support the pastor who delivered it.

Colonial Clergymen Political Leaders

The fuss goes deeper than that, of course. There has long been a growing feeling that many pastors are interested in talking about everything but personal religion. The political, economic, sociological sermon is very common in our evangelical churches. Prohibition, disarmament, the League of Nations, State Socialism, all such purely political questions are freely aired from our pulpits. The other day a western pastor preached a whole discourse in support of Gov. Roosevelt for President.

This habit of mind of our preachers is a direct inheritance from the Calvinist ministers of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, who were political leaders as well as religious. Richard Mather preached a sermon bidding the legislature pass a law electing Governor Winthrop for life. John Cotton made up of laws based entirely on Leviticus which he sought to have passed as the law of the land. The legislature turned down both propositions.

The fact is that the Puritan clergyman was elected by his people and was called, not Pastor, but "Teacher." The Thursday services were called "lectures." The tradition has persisted. Our American Protestantism has always, apparently, put the emphasis more on instruction than on worship.

I ran across an astonishing passage the other day in the most curious place, a popular thriller about Chicago gangsters. "Seven Murders" (Macaulay) by one Robert Harold May. Right in the climax of the book's excitement, the author bursts out as follows:

"Fanatical he was, and knew it—Jasper. Not religious. No. He hated the self-content, better-than-thou attitude of the clergy. He despised their sermons, mocking as they did with political implication to the exclusion of God's word. He scorned, not Christianity, but the modern inefficiency of those who sought to teach it . . . Talk! Talk! Talk!

"About political parties that threatened the security of a great nation—about foreign entanglements—about the undermining of our great and revered Constitution—Prohibition! Why in hell didn't they teach the youngsters to be good because Christ died for them, instead of bellyaching about things that could well be left to the newspapers?"

Criticism of Clergy Common

As I say, a perfectly astonishing passage to find in the middle of a gangster thriller, written obviously by a very well informed and hard boiled newspaper man. It represents a point of view which I suspect is far more common than our clergymen realize.

Another angle of the same problem is to be seen in the subjects for discussion which are announced for the meetings of the national seminar on worship of the Congregational and Christian churches, to be held next week at Lake Sunapee. The subjects are: "How can the dramatic effectiveness of Christian worship be enhanced without the church service becoming theatrical?" and "Is a chancel preferable to a central pulpit in front, exalting the preaching office of the minister with the communion table on a lower level?"

It will be interesting to see what the conference decides about these two questions. They are fundamental. Traditional protestant architecture abolished the chancel and the altar and erected instead a speaker's platform. The service centered round the sermon. The service emphasized instruction not worship.

But it is noticeable that many of the new evangelical Protestant churches are being built with a chancel and an altar, with a raised pulpit at one side, approximating the architecture and decorations of the Catholic and Anglican churches. Old churches are being remodelled in this manner. The age-old symbols of the Christian faith, long banished from our plain meeting-houses are flooding back.

More Worship in Religion

No one in his senses would want to lay a decorative hand on the old New England meeting houses. But the hybrid, mongrel church architecture of the post-civil war period, with auditoriums like theaters or legislative assembly rooms, can well be scrapped. Any return to the atmosphere of the historical church is not retrogression but progress.

The implications of this change are enormous. It means more worship, more ceremony, more liturgy, more of the symbolic, in a word more of the atmosphere of worship. It means shorter sermons, less emphasis on the didactic and, therefore, less politics and social philosophy. It means recognition of the fact that great dramatic symbols have played a part not to be overestimated in historic Christianity, that edification cannot be dissociated from feeling and that there is little in the traditional evangelical Protestant service to arouse that kind of reverend emotion.

In churches built and decorated in the historic tradition it will not be so easy for the minister to preach long sermons laying down the law to his congregation as to what they should think concerning the liquor problem, the minimum wage, the Lausanne pact, and so on. The average member of the congregation considers the minister an amateur on those subjects. If he wants that sort of thing he can go to an Open Forum. The minister is supposed to be an expert on Religion. Let him stick to his last!

HUSBAND AWAY TO REST, SAYS MRS. O'NEILL

Both Happily in Love, Asserts the Girl Bride of Everett Mayor's Father, 69

Just because one's husband remains in seclusion doesn't mean that there has been a separation, Mrs. Mary C. O'Neill, 18-year-old bride of Michael C. O'Neill, 69, father of Mayor O'Neill of Everett, protested today.

Since Saturday night when the "May and December" couple arrived in Cambridge from California, where they were married three weeks ago, the elderly bridegroom has not been seen publicly or at the home of Mary's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John D. Duguay, 3 Hampshire pl., Cambridge.

"RESTING," SAYS BRIDE.

For only ten minutes following arrival of the couple did O'Neill remain in the Duguay top floor flat apartment, then he hurried out of the house, jumped into his expensive car and sped away.

"He is tired and he is resting," declared the young and pretty bride today. "Any talk that we are separated is false. I love him and he loves me. I am only keeping away from him to allow him to rest up after the trip. No—it doesn't matter where he is. I know and that is sufficient."

The couple, who were married in California last month, arrived here by automobile

MOTHER HAPPY

If the bride, who had come home with a husband older than her mother, had any doubts about the reception she would get they were quickly dispelled

"I'm glad to see my daughter and glad she has such a nice man as Mr. O'Neill for a husband," Mrs. Duguay declared "She married with our consent and she seems happy.

"I guess they are going to live in Brookline for a while anyway."

PIPE LEAKS; HE CALLS FIREMEN

Flustered or not flustered as Jacob Gersham may have been, firemen in Dorchester were unsympathetic with him today when he pulled a false alarm box in Wilowood st. because a water pipe in his cellar at 55 Winston rd had broken

The cellar was fast flooding when Gersham discovered the break He ran down to the box and pulled the hook.

All he got from the firemen, however, was a rebuke from District Chief James Ryan, who told him it cost $25 just to pull the apparatus out of the station on a false alarm.

Just then the firemen were told there was an alarm for a grass fire in New Calvary Cemetery, less than a mile away, and they hopped aboard their apparatus and sped off, leaving Gersham still in confusion.

$60,000 Holyoke Fire

Holyoke, July 18—Flames swept the four-story building in the center of the business section, housing the Osborn Hardware Co., today causing a loss estimated at $60,000

BRIDEGROOM, 69, RESTING

Mrs. Mary D. O'Neil, 18, who declared reports she and her 69-year-old bridegroom had parted were ridiculous. "He's only gone to rest up," she said at the Cambridge home of her parents.

Kitten Calls Police on Lynn Telephone, But No Burglar

Visions of a tragedy flashed today through the mind of a Lynn telephone supervisor when a light sparkled in the Lynn exchange signifying that the receiver had been removed from the telephone in the home of Thomas R Keeney III 53 Lewis st.—but she could get no response

A call to police sent Sergt John F. Welch and a squad to the house, and because no one responded to the bell, they forced their way in

They found that a kitten had knocked off the receiver in the absence of the family over the week-end.

TAKES CLEANER FLUID AFTER HIS RELEASE

Six Boys Seized by Police in Arlington After Race in Which 5 Shots Were Fired

Climaxing a joy ride of six youths in an alleged stolen car, ending in Arlington after shots were fired, Frank M. Andrews, 22, of Cambridge st., East Cambridge, was in a critical condition at Cambridge City Hospital today after police said he attempted suicide

According to police, Andrews, after being released on bail, went home and drank two kinds of disinfectant

He was to have faced arraignment in East Cambridge court today for larceny of an automobile and using the car without authority

With five other youths, three of them juveniles, Andrews was arrested in Arlington yesterday after a two-mile chase They were in a car police said was the property of Warren J Swett of Canton, taken from Harvard sq on Friday night

Patrolmen John J. Hourihan and Thomas R Piggott, in a police cruising car, saw the auto near Adams sq., Arlington, and pursued it. After firing five shots they stopped it at Gove st., and arrested the occupants, who were taken to Cambridge headquarters. Extra registration plates were in the car, police said

In addition to Andrews the young men were booked as Michael J Perry, 19, of Bolton st., Somerville; Michael C. Dunne 17, of Bolton st., Somerville; Frank Carriea 15, of Elm st., Somerville; Gil Silva, 18, of Berkshire st., Cambridge, and Joseph Menez, 16, of Fourth st., Cambridge

RITES FOR ATTY. FITZGERALD

The funeral of Atty. Michael H Fitzgerald, first president of East Boston-Winthrop Bar Association took place today from the home, 55 Atlantic st., Winthrop

Requiem high mass was celebrated in the Church of St Jonn the Evangelist, Winthrop by the Rev. John J. Sullivan. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden

There was a profusion of flowers including a wreath from Mayor Curley

Bearers were Michael J. Shannon, James C. O Shea, Edward Delaney, Andrew Conrad, Edward Irwin and Frank Irwin, all of Williams Court. M C. O. F., of which the deceased was a member.

Among those present were Commissioner of Institutions James E Maguire, Attorney William Maguire, Miss Grace Dalton, assistant clerk of East Boston court; Denis J. Kelleher, probation officer; Attorney Carl Bowman and delegates from the M. C. O. F.

Secret Is Out

Publication of their marriage intentions Saturday was followed by announcement that Miss Helen C. Finch, of 118 Walnut st., and Ralph A. Carlson, of 145 Spruce st., both of Watertown, had been secretly married May 15 at the home of Rev. W. C. Brown in Littleton.

$366,489 LEFT MRS. COTTON

Mrs. Jane B. Cotton of 239 Beacon st., Back Bay, wife of Dr. Frederick J. Cotton, internationally-known surgeon, comes into an inheritance of $366,489 through the will of her brother, William H Baldwin, cotton merchant, filed today in New York.

Baldwin died on May 8

Mrs. Cotton, a leader in Boston society, recently brought suit in Superior Court against Mrs. Myra H Ormsbee of 59 Commonwealth ave to compel her to return several articles of furniture, plate and silver declared to have been lent to her

The articles were lent by Dr. Cotton during absence of Mrs. Cotton, the suit charges, and Mrs. Ormsbee had refused to live up to her agreement to return them on demand

Mark Begs Sondra to Marry Him

What Has Gone Before

Spending a last evening with Mark Merriman before he sails for the Congo, Sondra Kent wonders how she can face the five years of separation. But she will not marry him until he makes his fortune, she determines, as she has been brought up with one goal—the marrying of a drillionaire. Also, she realizes she would not be happy in poverty, with "cheap clothes, a mean house and the eternal grind of trying to make ends meet on nothing year." She has obtained his position in the Congo from John Anderson, who loves her but cannot marry her because his wife will not divorce him. Mark and Sondra talk about anything except the fact that they care for each other. She wonders how she will be able to get through the last minutes of seeing him off on the boat

Now Read On—

IT WAS A BEAUTIFUL night; a clear sky with a golden waning moon and a breath of coming spring in the air. Sondra sat there beside Merriman in the narrow automobile seat, her hands clenched, her feet pressed hard to the floor.

"I can't bear it. . . I can't bear it . . ." she was saying over and over again in her heart.

She spoke suddenly, quietly "Are you in a hurry Do we have to go home quite at once"

"Of course not, I only thought . . . where shall we go"

"Anywhere—it's such a heavenly night"

She moved her arm a little so that it touched his and she closed her eyes, trying not to think

He said suddenly with an effort, "A penny for your thoughts," and she answered impulsively.

"I was envying you, wishing I could come to."

She heard his match his breath sharply, but he answered in a hard voice

"You would loathe it. I believe all women do. There are mosquitoes and enormous spiders and fevers and—and every inconvenience one can conceive.

"I know, John Anderson told me how his wife hated it; but, of course, that's years ago—things have improved"

NOT A WOMAN'S COUNTRY

"It's not a woman's country."

They drove on for some way, not speaking again. Sondra half dozed beside him; the hum of the engine and the soft air on her face were almost like a soothing narcotic

When he spoke presently she started, as if she had really been sleeping

"Isn't this beautiful?"

She opened her eyes and leaned a little forward, staring at the river far below, gleaming like a golden snake in the moonlight, winding away between wooded banks, far out of sight

Merriman said suddenly: "Well, wherever I go I shall never see anything I like better than this. We used to live near here when I was a boy—and I often came here and looked over the river and dreamed of all the wonderful things I would do when I grew up. Funny, isn't it?"

"I expect all those wonderful things will come true."

"Do you? Well, I did."

She said softly, "Tell me what they were—those wonderful things." He shook his head.

"They've all gone. . . . I can't remember them any more. I can only remember that . . ." He stopped and she added for him:

"That on Friday morning the boat goes at 11."

HE NODDED SILENTLY

He nodded silently.

Sondra was very still for a moment, then she said quietly, "Mark, don't you think because the boat goes at 11 on Friday you might . . . you might be quite honest with me—just for this once"

She felt his body stiffen, but he said nothing, and she touched the hand that rested on the steering wheel

"Quite . . . quite honest," he said with a sob.

He gave a rough little laugh

"And say things we should be sorry for—for the rest of our lives"

"Mightn't we be more sorry . . . if they are never said?" she whispered.

It seemed a long time before he spoke, and then it was in a slow,

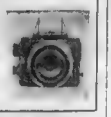
Inspecting Hospital With the Candid Camera



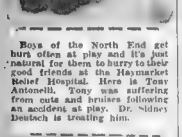
BY CANDID CAMERA

I have seen the name of the Haymarket Relief Station in the paper so much I had to go over to look over this active spot.

Fate had a hand in this, for as I was being hustled across Haymarket sq. the ambulance went out on an emergency call. The driver is John McNeely. The attendant is Francis McNamara.

The ambulance returned. A man collapsed in a telephone booth as he phoned a business friend. Attendants are shown bringing him into the observation room for attention. He was not detained long.

Boys of the North End get hurt often at play and it's just natural for them to hurry to their good friends at the Haymarket Relief Hospital. Here is Tony Antonelli. Tony was suffering from cuts and bruises following an accident at play. Dr. Sidney Deutsch is treating him.



If I hadn't seen that ambulance, this is the gentleman I would have had to approach before gaining access to the Relief hospital departments. He is John Cole, in charge of the inquiry desk.

NEW SNARL IN STRIKE

The demands of granite manufacturers of Quincy that employes pay more than two-thirds of the expense of compensation insurance is said to have prevented the settlement of the strike called several weeks ago.

Through the conference brought about by Miss Alice Weinstock, federal conciliator, the manufacturers finally agreed to incorporate compensation insurance in their agreement, which would have them pay about 20 cents on the dollar less than that paid by the employes.

This was turned down by the men on the grounds that they had volunteered to take a wage cut of $1 per day, although working under a contract that did not expire until April 1, 1934.

BOSTON BROKER INDICTED FOR WOMAN'S LOSS

Linked W.th Toronto Man in Obtaining Fortune of Victim, Whose Sister Died

The alleged mulcting of an invalid Brookline woman of nearly $50,000 by Boston and Toronto, Ont., brokers was revealed today following the arrest of Thomas B. Kenny at his Maple Beach, Ont., summer home.

Kenny, a Toronto broker, is charged with the larceny of $47,882 from Miss Mae McCarthy, 40 of 115 Fuller st., Brookline.

A Boston man, secretly indicted in connection with the case was expected to be arrested today.

A tragic feature of the alleged stock swindle according to police was the recent death of Miss Jean McCarthy, sister of the complainant. Police said the loss of her sister's money was the contributing cause of her death.

GILT EDGE SECURITIES

Inspector George Farrell of the headquarters bank squad said the Boston broker first approached Miss Mae McCarthy 18 months ago, having learned she owned nearly $50,000 worth of gilt edge securities.

Through high-powered salesmanship the broker induced her to turn over the securities to him for investment in stocks which he assured her would pay far larger dividends, according to Farrell.

The broker is said to have told Miss McCarthy that the investment would be handled by Kenny, and that the money obtained from the securities would be sent to him.

Months passed and nothing further was heard of the investment by the sisters, according to Inspector Farrell.

DEATH TAKES SISTER.

Miss Helen McCarthy, who had been living after the details because of her sister's physical condition, worried over the money until the became ill and died.

When more than a year had gone by without any definite action regarding the investment as far as Miss McCarthy knew, Boston police were notified. Inspector Farrell made an investigation, the results of which were laid before Dist. Atty. William J. Foley. The Boston broker and Kenny were indicted the Canadian being arrested yesterday. He will appear in Toronto for an extradition hearing today.

30,000 GATHER ON ESPLANADE

The largest crowd of the present season attended the 100th Esplanade Concert at the Charles River embankment last evening. Nearly 30,000 persons were present.

Last evening's program included the prelude to Wagner's "Meistersingers," the second movement of Beethoven's Seventh Symphony, the "Blue Danube Waltz" of Strauss, the "March Slav" of Tchaikovsky, the "Vase Triste" of Sibelius and the medley on from "Pain" by Mascagni.

The Esplanade Concert fund has reached a total of $3000. A total of $12,000 is needed to finance the scheduled 24 concerts.

Malden Man Held as Maine Fugitive

Arrested as a fugitive from justice at the request of the Cumberland County authorities at Portland, Me., Sherman J. Parks, of Daniels st., Malden, is held by Chelsea police awaiting the arrival of officers from Portland with extradition papers.

Parks was arrested in Portland in March charged with illegal transportation of liquor. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $300 and three months in jail. He appealed and was defaulted for non-appearance.

Two Men Injured in Dorchester Crash

After a truck and sedan collided at Dorchester ave. and East Cottage st., Dorchester, yesterday, Ronald Dodd of Gondala st., Dorchester, driver of the sedan, was treated at City Hospital for bruises of the back. A passenger in the car, Daniel O'Meara of Dawson st., Dorchester, suffered bruises of the legs. The operator of the truck was Joseph J. Gambone of 62 Lubec st., East Boston.

Argument Leads to Man's Stabbing

Feramino Rocco, 33, of Sumner st., East Boston, sustained severe lacerations about the neck and back last night when he was stabbed by a man with whom he had been arguing in the North End. He denied knowing his assailant.

Rocco was taken to the Haymarket Relief Hospital by police.

Trio Fractures West End Man's Jaw

Cambridge police today were searching for three men who beat up Luke Patrick, 48, of Billerica st., West End, in East Cambridge and fractured his jaw. Patrick told police they leaped on him in Commercial ave.

NAME STARS AND WIN CASH

Name ..... 1—Well-known radio and musical comedy star; featured in "Artists and Models," "Merry World," "Passing Show of 1926," "Night in Spain" and a well-known night club in Boston last fall. She has an extremely well-shaped figure. Do you know who she is?

Name ..... 2—This rotund gentleman was one of the most famous film comedians the silent pictures ever produced. He has received one of the toughest breaks any celebrity has ever had, and all America is cheering him on his present RKO tour. What's his name?

Name ..... 3—Half of the most famous sister team in showbusiness, this girl is on RKO vaudeville stages alone for the first time. She and her sister starred in "Hitchy Koo," "Tip Top," "big-time" vaudeville, and made a movie called "Topsy and Eva." Now do you know her?

CASH AWARDS TO STAGE FANS

To readers of the Boston Evening American an opportunity is offered today—for two weeks—to build up that depleted cash reserve and to have fun while doing it.

Each week day, commencing today and continuing for two weeks, there will be published in the Boston Evening American three photographs of noted RKO vaudeville stars, with hints as to their identity.

HERE IS YOUR JOB

Your job is to fill in their names, correctly and neatly, and for cash prizes and tickets to the RKO Keith's Theater each week.

Each week there will be awarded $25 to the person sending in the correct or the most correct identifications, $15 will be awarded to the second best list and $10 will be awarded to the third place contestant.

SIMPLE, ISN'T IT?

That's all there is to it—just fill in the names of the stars whose photographs are published each day and send them to the Vaudeville Editor, Boston Evening American 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

In the event of ties remember that depleted cash reserve and to have fun while doing it.

You must not send in identifications for a single day. Save them for the full week and then forward them to the Vaudeville Editor, bearing in mind that to be eligible for judging they must bear a postmark not later than midnight on the following Monday.

Everyone except employes of the Boston Evening American and RKO Theaters employes, is eligible to enter the contest.

YOU BEGIN TODAY

One photograph printed today is that of an actress who appeared here last fall in "The Little Racketeer," and who is well known for her radio, musical comedy and night club work. The second persons whose photograph is published was one of the funniest comedians in the silent films and the third is one of a famous sister team in "Topsy and Eva," the other member of which is now married to a film star.

All you have to do is identify this trio. Now go to it!

Home and Safe

BLAST VICTIMS WANT CITY AID

Confident that the city will pay for the damage done to their homes by the recent dynamite blast, West Roxbury home owners of Edgemere and Hinsdale roads today awaited a reply to the request Mayor Curley by the Rev. James G. Lane, pastor of the Washington Boulevard Methodist Church spiritual chairman of the committee composed of citizens who suffered by the blast.

The letter requested a hearing so the residents could state their case and learn their exact legal standing.

The posting of a placard on the home of John McKenzie of 46 Edgemere road, whose home was wrecked, condemning the property brought out the fact that McKenzie must tear down his home at his own expense.

According to City Solicitor Samuel Silverman, the home owners can only bring legal action against the contractor.

Girl's Purse Stolen

A purse containing $50 was stolen from Miss Alice Fernald of Inman st., Cambridge, while she was playing tennis at the Cambridge Y. W. C. A. courts.

WOMEN OFFER LIQUOR PLAN

The State of Massachusetts should create a bi-partisan commission on liquor control, which should have full power under such laws as the state might enact to regulate the liquor traffic. The commission should be kept out of politics.

This is one of the important points suggested by the Massachusetts branch of the Women's Organization for National Prohibition Reform, for legislation that will promote real temperance with the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

While not attempting to make a direct answer to the ardent dry leaders as to how they will prevent the return of the saloon, the Massachusetts branch has drawn up a tentative plan for this state, in which they declare that the essential requirements of any plan must be to preserve the benefits which have been gained through elimination of the saloon.

Dorchester Break

Thieves broke into the variety store of Charles Cassasan at 1530 Dorchester ave., Dorchester, and stole tobacco valued at $15.

SOUTH END MAN TRIES SUICIDE

After writing two notes, one to the police requesting flowers for his grave and the other to Miss Maria Aja of Leland st., Roxbury, his sister-in-law, Pavlo Santiago, 36, sealed the doors and windows of his room at 179 Shawmut ave. South End, and turned on the gas in an attempt at suicide yesterday.

Roomers in the house smelled the odor of gas and broke through the door to find Santiago in an unconscious condition on the bed, and sent a hurry call to police City Hospital doctors placed Santiago on the danger list.

Santiago stated in his letter to Miss Aja that he was despondent over unemployment.

CO-EDS ON TOUR OF N. ENGLAND

Boston is host today to a group of students from Antioch College, Yellow Springs, O., who are touring nine of the Northeastern States in a combined sightseeing and education trip, under the supervision of two members of the faculty.

The two days in Boston will be spent in visits to the many historical sites, the navy yard, Commonwealth pier, and several factories. They will then drive to New York by easy stages, camping along the road. It is the first time girls were included in these tours.

East Boston Man Knifed in Argument

An assailant, whose identity he refused to divulge, badly wounded Seranino Recco, 33, of Sumner st. East Boston, with a knife following an argument at North st. and Hanover ave., North End, last night. Recco was treated at the Haymarket Relief Hospital and later taken to the Hanover street station, where he was booked for drunkenness.

Child Injured in Fall From Window

Slipping over the sill as she leaned too far from the second story window of her home, Josephine Dellofo, two, of Sherwood st., Roxbury, was seriously injured yesterday as she landed on the sidewalk. She was taken to City Hospital.

Melrose Aldermen Likely to Urge Cut

Despite the opposition of Mayor Robert A. Perkins to municipal salary cuts, the Melrose board of aldermen will, it is believed, advance their recommendation for a 10 per cent voluntary contribution on the part of all city employes, policemen and firemen, at a meeting to be held on Thursday.

Thieves Rob Girls' Apartment of Gems

Thieves entered the apartment of three girls at 15 Audubon rd., Back Bay, over the weekend and robbed the jewel cases of the occupants of rings, bracelets and other pieces valued at $800. The victims of the theft were the Misses Margaret Obrey, Mildred Nicholson and Elinor R. Bristol.

Services Tomorrow for Dr. D. W. Vail

Funeral services for Dr. John Warren Vail, 56, of 30 Kilsyth rd., Brookline, who died suddenly Saturday at his summer home in Duxbury, will be held tomorrow afternoon, at 2 o'clock, at the Waterman chapel.

YOUTH FRAMED BY RIVAL, SAYS SWEETHEART

South Boston Girl's Testimony Is Backed by Five Others for Concord Inmate

The charge that her sweetheart, James Cassidy of Rogers st., South Boston, was framed in a theft case by a youth seeking revenge, and railroaded to Concord reformatory, was made in superior court today by Miss Margaret Kiley, 18, of E. Seventh st., South Boston.

She headed a group of six witnesses who testified before Judge Elias Bishop in connection with a petition for a new trial for Cassidy.

IN ATTO TIRE THEFTS

Each charged having heard a man named Joseph Bailey say he would frame or had framed Cassidy in giving false information to police regarding stolen automobile tires because Cassidy previously had told police Bailey was carrying a revolver.

Miss Kiley told Judge Bishop that in June last year, almost six months before Cassidy was sentenced, she refused to accompany Bailey on an automobile ride. She quoted him as saying:

"If you're waiting for Cassidy you won't be going with him long. I'm going to put him away for it I have to frame him. He tried to get me, but I'm going to get the ump on him."

FIVE OTHERS TESTIFY

She said she had not appeared at the trial because she thought Bailey had been trying to "show off."

Everett Desisat of Vinton st, South Boston, said he heard Bailey say Cassidy had done "plenty of dirty tricks on me and I got him."

Edmund Sullivan of Ward st. said Bailey told him he would "get even" with Cassidy. Three other witnesses gave similar testimony.

SALEM GIRL AND MAN SOUGHT

New England was being combed today for Margaret Moran, 19, of Abbott st., Salem, pretty 1931 graduate of Salem high school, who has been missing from her home since July 11.

On a circular containing a picture of the girl, City Marshal John C. Hawkins of Salem requested New England police chiefs to be also on the watch for Joseph John Dinan, 20, who disappeared at the same time. He is said by police to be a married man.

Two days previous to the girl's disappearance, Dinan was questioned by Chief Hawkins concerning his friendship and relations with the girl, Hawkins revealed last night.

He said Dinan denied anything more than a casual acquaintance existed between them. Harkins said he summoned Dinan to his office at the request of the girl's relatives.

Missing Lynn Man Found Dead in Home

Frank Hunter, 47, of West Baltimore st., Lynn, missing since Friday, was found dead in his apartment yesterday by Harry Cornell, business partner, who broke open the door in search of Hunter, associated with the janitor. Acting Medical Examiner Lawrence Cusick pronounced death due to heart trouble.

"Horatius" of Dirt Pile Ends Road Fight

The reconstruction of Hawthorne ave., Arlington Heights, proceeded without difficulty today when John J. Elsner discontinued his efforts to prevent the road from being built in front of his home. Last Thursday Elsner took a stand on a dirt pile in front of his house and informed the construction men they should not pass.

Roxbury Woman Injured by Auto

Miss Mildred L. Olmdal, 28, of Herman st., Roxbury, was in a serious condition early today in City Hospital, her skull fractured, as the result of being struck by an auto, which police say was operated Louis J. Salemi of Laconia st., South End, in Warren st., Roxbury.

Flatiron Threat Foils Store Theft

A thief who punched Miss Alice Morency, 22, clerk of a cleansing shop at 1005 Massachusetts ave., Cambridge, in the eye Saturday night, took to his heels when she threatened him with a flatiron. It was reported to police. The youth had ordered her to open the cash register.

Dorchester Fire Delays Traffic

Traffic was tied up for more than 30 minutes as firemen battled a fire in a two-and-a-half story wooden house at 482 Norfolk st., Dorchester, late yesterday. The house was owned and occupied by Samuel Scovits.

HONEYMOONERS ON BOAT

It was a busy day of shipping at Commonwealth Pier, yesterday, as the S. S. Adriatic moved out taking on a goodly number of passengers from this port. Here we have Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Cornelius, of Providence, newlyweds, sailing on a honeymoon trip. (Staff Photos.)

500 SAIL FOR EUROPE

With two sailings and two arrivals from European ports, yesterday was another busy day along the waterfront, with big crowds at the docks to bid bon voyage and greet returning tourists.

When the Hamburg-American liner Milwaukee nosed out from Commonwealth Pier, she had aboard two Irish patriots, returning to offer their services to President De Valera in the struggle for complete independence. They are Eugene P. M. Sheehan of Allston, and Dr. Francis Creedon of Brockton, former soldiers in the "Irish Republican army."

The Milwaukee had 75 cabin, 100 tourists and 100 third-class passengers for Galway, Cherbourg and Hamburg.

The White Star liner Adriatic left Commonwealth Pier with 200 passengers for Galway, Queenstown and Liverpool including Miss Ellen F. Pendleton, president of Wellesley College.

The Scythia landed 53 cabin, 103 tourist and 56 third-class passengers at the Cunard pier in East Boston. Mayor John J. Murphy of Somerville was at the pier to meet his father and mother Mr and Mrs. Joseph J. Murphy, returning from the Eucharistic Congress at Dublin.

The American Merchant liner American Farmer, from London, arrived at Pier 4, East Boston.

BACK TO IRELAND

Mrs. Thomas F. Simpson sailed for Ireland yesterday. She is to visit relatives—then back to 21 Larchmont st., Dorchester. (Staff Photo.)

AUTOS CLAIM 16 LIVES

Warning automobilists that loss of license may often result in loss of unemployment Registrar of Motor Vehicles Morgan T. Ryan attacked the careless driver, who he stated was responsible for most of the 16 automobile fatalities during the past week.

Convictions for drunken driving increased to 97. There were 2048 licenses, and registrations suspended or revoked last week, 483 more than in the same period last year and 165 more than in the week before. Insurance cancelations accounted for 1330 of this number.

NOT ALL ARTISTS LOSE FAITH IN ART

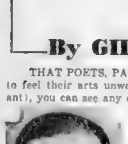
By GILBERT SELDES

THAT POETS, PAINTERS AND NOVELISTS are beginning to feel their arts unworthy (and economics much more important), you can see any day by looking at pictures, reading books, or listening to literary cocktail talk. So I take special pleasure in offering a rebuttal by E. E. Cummings, who is poet and painter and prose-writer, who has been to Russia (and is writing a book about it), and isn't scared. He isn't even scared enough to change his extraordinary and brilliant style.



GILBERT SELDES

"Did anyone wish to enjoy himself or her—or itself?" Mr. Cummings asks.

"Probably not. Probably themselves are what people least wish to enjoy. People have different opinions, probably, or neckties; and people are probably alike in that they reserve enjoyment from whatever isn't themselves.

A Fairy Tale

"Once upon a time (before a great big mean nasty horrid, ugly ogre ate up all the cereal) there was a thing called 'life' which people enjoyed. And the reason why people enjoyed 'life' may by mysterious; but this is clear—'life' was whatever people's selves weren't. If once upon a time people's selves were waking up with a capitalist alarmclock, 'life' was going by—by with a cannibal princess; if once upon a time people's selves were bathing in the bathtub, 'life' was continuing in the continuum; if once upon a time people's selves were taking it on their communist chin, 'life' was triumphantly waving the irrevocably righteous oriflamme of unenslaved future generations of transcendentally omnipotent humanity. (The queen and the continuum and the humanity were probably all dosed with movies and talkies—although life may conceivably have involved opening a speakeasy or getting shot for non-collective farming or even reading a book on matter; it doesn't matter; people enjoyed 'life' once upon a time).

'Life' Wasn't

"And the only trouble, probably, with 'life' was that meanwhile 'life' wasn't. 'Life' wasn't only people's selves—and therefore enjoyable to people; 'life' wasn't even its own self. Probably 'life' was 'economics' and 'life' must have been 'science'; and 'sex' is a nice word too; at all events, this thing called 'life' wasn't a and wasn't r and wasn't

'Art, curiously, is the only thing which is

'It makes no difference whether people who enjoy 'life' (when there's 'life' to enjoy; which there isn't, just now) disagree with the above statement, whether they consider myself idiotic, or whether they unjustly (sort of kind of) don't care—the very simple (the perfectly improbable, the extremely painful) fact being, that all said ladies and gents and scientists are nonexisting. Nonexisting people, probably, are the only people who reserve enjoyment for whatever isn't themselves. And whether nonexisting people nonexist according to Marx or according to Morgan or according to Santa Claus (or some other bigtime racketeer) doesn't matter a damn.

'Being Alive'

'Art—defined by an unknown playwright of the 20th century as 'a question of being alive' (not 'a matter of being born')—is the one question which only matters.

"And whether 'civilization' tries to control art, or neglect art, doesn't matter. And if probably fish will be taught to sing the international and volcanos will probably learn esperanto and O'Gene Eunell will open a probably cherry-bowling parlour for mute inglorious Agamemnons in every little pink schoolhouse—who cares? Certainly not the artists! 'We,' very gaily if very sorrowingly remarked the greatest living sculptor, who inhabits New York and is called Lachaise, 'you and I, we have all-ways know dia ting de-pression.' He might very well have added that the more nonexisters stick their heads in gasovens and slash their wrists with safetyrazorblades and quaff iodine and hop out of windows and hang and bang (and drown and communise and socialise and telescope and microscope and spectroscope their 'life'—enjoying selves, the better.

Buffano's Dolls

"Why—in the sacred name of uncommon sense—worry because ..fe' really isn't?

"Feel something which actually is! E. g (to begin softly) a doll, by Remo Buffano for Remo Buffano and of Remo Buffano. This doll may be a knight, may be a spirit, may be Mr. Sogloff's splendid 'little king,' may be a horse, may be a lady, I hope it's a dragon. This doll isn't merely when or where Remo Buffano is; this doll is Remo Buffano himself. But—curiously—this doll is also the very selves of you and of me, anybody who doubts it is merely everybody who's never had the more than pleasure of meeting himself or her—or itself, alas art.

Soul Is Not Drycleaned

"Curiously (as nothing less incredibly alive than a Remo Buffano doll reveals) the extremely complex (the perfectly probable, the very joyous) truth is . . . whisper it . . . that you and I are incredibly alive. ## Ceremony Will Take Place in Wianno

Miss Elizabeth Crossett, whose engagement to Mr. John Leland Mortheshead, Jr., of Pasadena, was announced [illegible] evening, is to take a [illegible] setting for her wedding on August 3.

Great preparations are being made for the event which is to take place in the wonderful gardens of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cary Crossett, summer estate at Wianno.

Betty has only recently arrived from California, and on her way across accompanied by her fiance and her grandmother, Mrs. James Rankin, she stopped off at Chicago just long enough for her many friends in the younger set to meet her fiance [illegible] to celebrate the engagement after which they sailed for New York [illegible] for the coming on to Wianno.

At the ceremony on August 3 Miss Elizabeth will have her sister Mrs. French Seiler as her matron of honor, and her youngest sister, Carolyn, aged 16, as maid of honor.

Mr. Mortheshead's younger brother, Morris, is to officiate as his best man. On the following day the couple will sail for Europe to spend a year abroad where the bridegroom is going to [illegible] Paris and at Cambridge University, [illegible] decision on [illegible] a subject he has yet to reach.

Miss Crossett made her debut [illegible] years ago. She served as her sister's maid of honor at her wedding to Mr. Edward Savage [illegible] three months ago.

Miss Thomas Is Paris Bride

The wedding of Miss Katherine Lyman Thomas to Count Mathias Opperdorff, was solemnized in Paris at noon today, at the home of her uncle, Mr. Elbridge Gerry Chadwick.

Miss Katherine Thomas, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. Thomas of Baltimore, wore for the occasion a gown of ivory crepe with long sleeves puffed to the elbow, full skirt, and a train attached to the waist to match; her head-dress was of grecian design, with a small veil fastened at the neck. The ensemble was specially designed for the bride by Lucian Leboug, of Paris.

Mr. Elbridge Gerry Chadwick, of New York, who married Miss Dorothy Jordon, gave her away at the ceremony.

Count Mathias Opperdorff, whose estate is at Oberglangen, upper Silesia, is the son of Count and Countess Jean Georges Opperdorff nee Princess Radzwill. Attending the wedding were the immediate relatives of the bride and bridegroom. Miss Rosamond Whitridge Thomas who married the bridegroom's brother, Count Edouard Opperdorff last summer was there with her husband. Also Mrs. Elbridge G. Chadwick, the bride's aunt by marriage.

A reception for the wedding party was given by Mr. and Mrs. Chadwick after the ceremony, at the Crillon, and in due course the newly wedded couple will make their home in Poland.

The bride, who is a member of the Junior League and Vincent Club of Boston, was staying with her aunt, Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson, quite recently when the engagement was announced. Mrs. Stevenson is just now at Bar Harbor while the bride's other sisters, Mrs. Malcom Bradlee and Miss Betty Thomas, are both at the former's summer estate in Rhode Island.

GIVE LOVE A VACATION, SAYS MISS FAIRFAX

Girl Writes She Feels in Doubt

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

He wants me to marry him but I can't settle down. Not now anyway. I must say he is sweet about it, for he is willing to wait indefinitely. Only when he talks of my being his wife I almost hate him, because I can't abide the thought of ownership. Freedom is my idea. I am 22. He once said the shadows under my brows are to blame for my restlessness—they reminded him of the spread wings of a bird. He does really have brains and thoughts, and I like him a lot. Mother says this restlessness will pass when I marry. HELPLESS GIRL.

Dear Evelyn [illegible] older the desire of [illegible] I can answer [illegible] and when [illegible] "Yes, your restlessness will pass." Age takes care of that. Whether or not you should marry the man you write of, however is another matter. You admit you "like him a lot." Do you love him? Marriage, to be successful, will demand that you love him with all your heart and only you but he would need that kind of love to make a success of married life. Suppose you give yourself and this friendly, nice kind of man a vacation while you make up your mind, say six months or a year. How would you like to get him free from his obligations and promises to you for a year?

Spoiled Wives

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

After a year of marriage I found that my charming young wife was "spoiled" by her parents. How can I cure her?

YOUNG HUSBAND.

Dear Husband. You know what that means. Girls who have lived too much at home, and who haven't had enough responsibility, often get the habit of treating their families as audiences and themselves as star performers. By exaggerating their own moods and caprices they secure constant attention at home, but become almost impossible for any new person to deal with. My utmost sympathy, therefore, flows out to the young husband who has discovered that he has a spoiled wife and who wants to find some simple, easy remedy for the distressing situation. There is none, I should say, that he can himself apply. The only remedy I know of isn't always practicable. What this young wife needs, and all girls like her, is a job. She will then find interest outside her home.

'HATTIE'S HEAVEN'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

THIS PICTURE you see here was Hattie's idea, her dear dream, her phantasms of the moonlit night hours in "the land of counterpane," her impossible wish to be exact, her idea of Heaven. No pink clouds with silvery-winged angels, golden harps, streamlets of honey, walls of jasper—when one was passed away and dead, yes! But not when one was 20 and alive! In fact, there wasn't even much of a hint of scenery, the almost needful setting of Nature's divinity. There was only (and who would want anything else, thought Hattie fervidly) beauty for Hattie, and beaux for Hattie! Plenty and luxury of both. So much of the first that the Avenue would turn and look over its shoulder as she swung magnetically by. So many of the second that they fought one another for a place beside her silver and blue skirt!

For you see Hattie was without spell and glamour. And she worked hard and was very much alone. Not homely, like some things of the wayside that we pass and never see. But no art, even of the simplest. "I," said Hattie, "could never bedevil the most inelegant youth!" From plain days, plain evenings of moon and stars, grew Hattie's picture of a girl-Heaven. It MUST be Heaven for those luckies who were table-turners in the domain of Love; who flaunted beauty and conquest both, to the admiring gaze of plain Harriet—called Hattie.

This is but one story of one Hattie. But it has happened like this thousands of times over. Hattie grew. Grew mentally, grew heartfully; read, thought, understood better and better the world around her, and saw the true value of certain things. Hattie became prettier. With the help of a little "art," a lot of kindness, a sense of humor. And then she found that Heaven wasn't just personal beauty of the ravishing order, and loads of beaux. It had a setting of other things, and a cast of other people as well. The beaux and the beauty were only part of the scheme of happiness, of heavenly happiness for a young girl named Hattie.—NELL BRINKLEY.

Daily True Story

Choosing a Girl

THERE WAS NOTHING the matter with Margaret Stone's eyes. She had clear, expressive blue eyes. And she could see almost as well as you or I can. But what she could see in Jerry Riley is more than I can tell you here.

Jerry was one of those slow starters, and naturally, when he went after anything, he always finished a bad third; that is, until Margaret met him.

For some inexplicable reason, known only to Margaret, she fell in love with him. And the inevitable answer to that is that her name only too soon was changed from Stone to Riley.

Before the rice and old shoes were cleared away, and the weeping assemblage had discussed, and rediscussed their possibilities, she began the process of rejuvenating Riley.

Jerry was crazy about Margaret, and I am sure he would have done anything for her—anything within reason—but as I intimated at the beginning of this paragraph, there was something wrong with Riley's reason.

To begin with, he objected to Margaret bringing a poodle dog into the house. But the dog stayed. Then he objected to the dog being called "Daisy."

When "Daisy" was trained to meet him at the door every night, with a pair of slippers in her mouth, Riley's objections knew no bounds. Of course, there was a scene, in the midst of which, Riley was able to find his hat.

He picked it up and started for the door, secretly hoping that Margaret would call him back, but Margaret knew exactly what she was doing and Jerry didn't. When the French-fried potatoes began to get cold, and Riley didn't show up for dinner, Margaret wondered if she had been too severe. If she had been, it was too late to turn back now; besides she was determined to teach Jerry the responsibilities of married life.

With the intuition given only to a woman, Margaret figured out almost exactly what Jerry was planning to do, and after a little more careful thought, she suddenly donned her wraps and left the house hurriedly.

When Jerry found that the Missing Persons Bureau had not been informed of his disappearance, and none of the policemen on their beats even looked at him suspiciously, he got mad all over and made up his mind that he would do something to make her sorry. He stayed away all that night and the next morning he went to the park with his favorite newspaper.

Almost the first thing that met his gaze was a story of a young chorus girl who wished to commit matrimony with a desirable young man who would in turn, agree to finance an operation for a blind relative.

Riley read the story over again, and after the second reading he got an idea. As a matter of fact, someone before me accused him of having an idea once before, so I don't feel the need to apologize to my readers for taking Riley out of his character this time.

His idea was simple: it would be—considering! He would go to the girl, threaten to marry her, get his name in the papers and Margaret would go green with envy.

Exactly one hour after he got the idea he was ringing the doorbell at the address given in the story. And fourteen seconds after that, to be exact, he ran square into the arms of Margaret.

While Jerry stood with a queer expression on his face, very much like one of those things the ancient Egyptians used to pack into six-foot boxes, Margaret explained:

"Brother Bill's press agent asked me to pose as this chorus girl to get the name of brother's new play in the newspapers. And I've turned down at least fifty aspirants before you came."—

"Oh, yeh! Well, who's this blind relative?" Riley managed to gurgle.

And when Margaret crooned: "YOU are the blind relative, Jerry, dear," Jerry filled up like a sponge in water.

I could see that he was weakening, so I didn't stay to hear any more. I don't know whether they explained everything else to each other's satisfaction, but the other day I heard that Margaret was "having the life of Riley."

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

Etiquette for the Formal Dance

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

I am a reader of your column and enjoy reading it very much. It helps one to keep up with the present times.

1. When a girl has a bid for a formal dance or social, who hands the bid to the person at the door, the girl or the man?

2. If the girl wants a corsage, and the man does not suggest it, what is the proper procedure?

1. The girl gives it to the man when he comes to take her to the party, and he hands it to the attendant at the door.

2. It is quite proper for the girl to buy her own corsage, as one of the accessories of her costume.

The Dinner Jacket.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN.

Is it proper for a gentleman to wear a white tie and vest with a Tuxedo suit?

J. R.

It is never correct to wear a white tie with a dinner jacket or Tuxedo suit. When we say "white tie," we mean formality, and the dinner jacket is informal evening wear. Indeed, when men say, "Do we wear white ties?" when they are inquiring about the dress expected of them for a certain occasion, they mean are they expected to wear formal evening attire, "tail-coats." "Black ties," on the other hand, mean dinner jackets, Tuxedo. But for the last few years it has been the fashion for men to wear white waistcoats with dinner jackets when they wish to register a bit more formality than is usually registered by a dinner jacket. And this is now accepted.

A Celebration

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My sister is to attend a celebration in honor of her husband. Would it be proper for her and the children to applaud when the speeches are given?

IC.

Yes, indeed. There is every reason why they should show their enthusiasm in just this way!

Chocolate Desserts

Easily and Economically Made

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

WANT TO KNOW a cooking secret that will make all sorts of chocolate good things far easier, quicker and surer? Then lend an ear while I tell you about a magic chocolate mixture that's made by adding a can of sweetened condensed milk to two squares of chocolate. Cook over boiling water for five minutes, stirring occasionally. The result is a smooth, perfect chocolate that you can use in a dozen ways. A mixture that would ordinarily take several more ingredients and at least a half-hour's cooking with plenty of watching and testing.

Now let's see how to use this little trick. Firstly, it makes the most gorgeous frosting—a truly foolproof frosting that never fails. Never grainy. Never too thick or too thin. Spread while still warm with a knife dipped in hot water. It goes on in rich swirls, a half-inch thick if you like.

Add a little more water and you have a delicious chocolate sauce. Add ½ to 1 cup of hot water and ¼ teaspoon of salt to your magic mixture, and there you are. A wonderful chocolate sauce, full flavored and creamy smooth.

For a chocolate pudding, add egg whites. It makes a pudding to rave about. Take your chocolate mixture and add to it 1-2 cup of water, let it cool for five minutes and then add 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Pile into sherbet glasses.

And do try these Unbaked Brownies and Chocolate Orange Tarts.

UNBAKED BROWNIES

2 squares unsweetened chocolate.
1-3 cups (1 can) sweetened condensed milk.
2 cups (3-3 lb.) vanilla wafer crumbs.
1 cup finely chopped walnut meats.

Melt chocolate in double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk stirring over boiling water 3 minutes, until mixture thickens. Add vanilla wafer crumbs and ¾ cup finely chopped nut meats. Butter shallow pan and sprinkle with ¼ cup nut meats. Place chocolate mixture in pan and spread evenly, using a knife dipped in hot water. Sprinkle top with remaining ¾ cup chopped nuts. Place in refrigerator several hours, or over night. To serve, cut in squares. Makes 24.

Note. Graham crackers may be used in place of vanilla wafers.

CHOCOLATE ORANGE TARTS

2 squares unsweetened chocolate.
1-3 cups (one can) sweetened condensed milk.
Grated rind of one-half orange.
2 oranges.
Eight baked tart shells.

Melt chocolate in double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk, stirring over boiling water for five minutes, or until mixture thickens. Add orange juice and rind. Add thoroughly blended. Cut orange sections into small pieces, free from membrane and remove in baked tart shells. Cover with chocolate mixture. Chill. Serves eight.

The Latest in Fashions

A GRAND TRICK is to wear a white jacket with an all-black frock. One woman wears a lovely white jacket with all her black or red frocks, whether dinner or evening models. The jacket is in heavy white crepe, a waistline model, that ties at the side. The full sleeves are embroidered all over in pearls and silver beads.

A REVERSAL of the usual order of things is the monotone dress with printed coat. A lovely ensemble has a frock of putty-colored crepe de chine with bands of wide lagoting. The coat is brown chiffon with a print of large putty-colored flowers outlined in brown, and has a belt of brown leather with a clasp of carved amber.

Gentlest Care Needed for Baby's Skin

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

AN INFANT'S skin is extremely sensitive to all irritations, both external and internal. That is why baby's first bath should never be a soap and water bath, but rather of good olive oil. Subsequently bathing should be done with warm water and a good quality soap.

Dry the skin thoroughly by very soft cloth, preferably linen. A liberal powdering should follow the bath and for this purpose use a good grade of baby powder.

Babies frequently suffer from irritation where two surfaces of skin touch each other—between the arms and the body, the chin and the chest, or between the thighs. This complaint is most common in fat babies. Lack of care in keeping the baby clean, failure to remove promptly any wet or soiled clothing and use of coarse soaps in washing the baby or his clothes, are frequent causes of skin irritations. The baby's garments should be rinsed in several tubs of clear water before drying, to make sure all the irritating soap is removed.

To relieve irritation around the buttocks, oil may be applied. A useful mixture is one part of castor oil and two parts of olive oil. After this has been applied, the parts should be dusted with a good talcum powder, preferably one containing zinc oxide. In a few days marked improvement is usually noted.

Prickly heat is another torment of babies during the warm weather. It may appear, too, in cooler weather if thick woolen underwear is worn. The swelling of the skin shuts off secretions of the sweat glands of the affected parts.

The treatment is frequent bathing and the application of talcum powder. Your doctor may advise a laxative and plenty of water should be taken between feedings. If flannel garments irritate the affected area, a thin muslin shirt should be worn next to the skin.

Hints From the Beauty Box

LAYERS of fat on the back of the neck can be pounded out of existence. Massage operators do it all the time; it is one of the simplest tricks of the trade. The flesh is picked up between finger and thumb and rolled firmly, the process breaking down the excess cells. Then the hammering starts. Ice rubs and applications of astringents finish the treatment.

WHEN LONG SKIRTS chased bobs off the fashion premises, it was predicted that the fussy, fluffy coiffure would return, make the wimmin look girly-girly once again. It did not materialize. The correct hair dress is sleek, formal, simple—its only ornamentation being those tight little button curls that have suddenly become all the rage.

"I may be the greatest failure —out there . . . or I may never come home again. Even if I do —there isn't any certainty—how do I know what sort of a future—"

She said with a sob

"Does the future matter? . . . We've got such a little while left."

He moved his hand away from hers almost roughly.

"It is not fair to any woman . . . to ask . . . to expect. . . . It might mean years of waiting, and then—at the end . . . nothing. Let me take you home now, Sondra, before I . . . we . . ."

CAUGHT HER TO HIM

Then suddenly he broke down, he turned and caught her to him with desperate arms.

"I love you. . . . I love you. . . ."

And she echoed his words wildly, as if she hardly knew what she was saying.

"I love you. . . . I love you."

"I never meant to tell you"

"I know"

"I've longed so to tell you . . . every time we met . . . every moment of the day and night—"

"I know."

"And now it's too late. . ."

She turned her face against his shoulder, her cheeks pressed to his.

"She said with a broken little laugh. "We've got . . . all the time . . . till the boat goes."

"If only that was true"

She lifted her face and their lips met.

After a long time, when he released her she said breathlessly, "Don't you think it belongs to us." The little time that is left? It may be all we shall have . . . all our lives."

She felt that she had suddenly grown tired—stonily, recklessly tired—of nothing mattered anymore but this man and the tender pressure of his arm around her shoulders, or was weeping

"Oh, I've never had any happiness—or real love, and now you're going away . . ."

He gently disengaged her arms, keeping both her hands in his.

"My darling, you don't know what you're saying—I love you too well . . . I can't go . . . you're too wonderful to me—I love you too well."

She went on pleading, remembering only that she might never see him again, longing for just one taste of happiness, before it was too late.

Then she heard his voice, broken, shaken with unwilling passion

"There's only one thing, Sondra if you . . . if we . . . if you will marry me . . . before I go."

Yes or no? The decision that Sondra makes tomorrow will influence her future life and happiness.

The long printed tunic of Molyneux, with its silk crepe skirt beneath gives the effect of a dress rather than a blouse-and-skirt combination; yet, when the coat is worn, the effect is one of a suit. Both three-quarter coat and skirt are made of a heavy black crepe substantial enough to serve for either town or country. The coat takes the new single-breasted opening and buttons from high neck to hem. It is worn without a belt.

By Faith Baldwin

"THIS IS THE TIME to call me by my right name," Jennie advised. "Say 'Jane Smith!' with expression. Register horror. Leave the room."

"Don't be an idiot" Lynn advised her crossly. "Jennie, did you go to Atlantic City with—"

"I did, Meyer, Jake, I—he's not a bad guy," said Jennie wistfully, "and he's liberal. Suites. You know."

She put her hand bag on the table opened it and thrust her long hand inside. The hand came out again and dripped down on the green damask several glittering objects, a plain gold wedding ring, a linked bracelet of diamonds; a solitaire.

Lynn stared.

SHE IS NOT MARRIED

"You're not—married?"

"No," answered Jennie, "no your age. Of course I'm not married. All that glitters is not wedding rings." She pushed the gold and aside disdainfully. "The old scenery," she explained.

"But he isn't married," Lynn said, helplessly. "He can perfectly well—"

"No, he can't. Money. His wife's money, tied up in the firm. When he married her he didn't, it will be someone they pick out for him. Eighth cousin, twice removed. Nothing doing. I'm a gentile. Laugh that off. But they're orthodox, his wife's people."

"She knew," said Jennie, when she died that she had him here she wanted him; in perhaps the next minute to the grave. I'd like you to know that he told me before I went. He's decent that way."

Lynn thought. I'm not shocked I ought to be shocked, but I'm not. I'm afraid, that's all. For Jennie

"Jennie, do you love him?" she asked.

"I DON'T LOVE HIM"

"No," replied Jennie indicisively, "I don't love him. I like him. I like him a lot. I like his money. What he can buy. We made our bargain. "I play square, see? No two-timing. owe him that much, don't I?"

"Are you going to Chicago?" asked Lynn, sick at heart.

"Well, no. He has too much ease. I'll stay here he'll come on once a month, maybe twice."

"I see." But she didn't. "Jennie," he cried, "why—why?"

"I'm not like you," Jennie told or somberly, "I don't give a hang or jobs. I haven't any ambition. The stage, modeling, all the rest, a way of earning my way. As for marriage, I haven't any ambition that direction, either. You know bout Slim. I'm not saying I didn't like him, but I had sense enough to quit seeing him. As a housewife with a couple of kids and an electric washing machine I'd be a flop

I can't help it if I was born with just breakfast-in-bed feeling, can I? I don't want to do anything but eat three, or maybe four squares meals a day and have my clothes and facials and a decent apartment somewhere. All right, so if I might get those things by myself. Don't be dumb! I wouldn't last ten days on any job but the one I have now and that wouldn't buy bird seed, let alone a gilded cage

HATE ME IN A YEAR

"Men? If there are any men wandering around with money looking for a nice blond wife, I haven't seen 'em. Now and then a guy like Slim comes along, all set to go to the minister Hed hate me in a year; I'd hate him in a month If ma's got what people call character and ambition, I suppose it pays to stay what people call good. If you haven't it doesn't. Not, at least, as far as I'm concerned.

"I expect to be faithful to Jake Meyer. I'll amuse him. I'll entertain him. I have looks a figure, he can hang clothes and jewelry on me, take me out and be proud of me. Men are like that, you know. They throw expensive junk at you and show you off."

"But Jennie, do you think you'll be happy?"

"I don't know. I suppose so. Why not? I'll be safe," said Jennie.

"No."

"Yes, I'll make it my business to be, see" Salt auas as much as I can. A girl's a fool who doesn't." After a minute she questioned, "I won't be seeing much of you, I suppose"

"Why not?" asked Lynn indignantly

"Tom. That's why"

TOM WILL FIND OUT

"Oh, Tom! Do you think I'd tell Tom"

"No, but he'll find out Kid, if he does, give me the gate. You have to play safe, too. I'll understand," said Jennie with the closest approach to sentiment Lynn had ever seen in her.

Lynn's eyes were misty.

Jennie said, "I'll pull out of the tink, of course. I'll pay my share there until you find somewhere to go in with you That's only right"

"Jennie, I couldn't—it wouldn't be fair Besides—" Lynn floundered

"You don't want to have Jake's money helping pay your rent" asked Jennie shrewdly "Well, it won't I'll pay my share out of my earnings, as usual."

"You're going on working?" gasped Lynn.

"Sure Why not? I'd go goofy sitting around all day alone with nothing to do but eat coupons and shine up the diamonds" Jennie said

"I'll never understand you! You said it was because you didn't want to work—"

"Heck!" agreed Jennie. "Not when work was all I had to look forward to But if you have a soft line"—she cocked an eyebrow at her friend—"then the sort of stuff I strut is fun Besides, it won't hurt Jake I can tip him off, you know, when the hot numbers come in"

IT WORKS BOTH WAYS

But Madame Fanchon?"

"It works both ways She'll know, but she'll never say so, she'll think I'll keep the home she'll be glad to keep me on. She's hurting as far as Jake's concerned She'll be right

"When are you leaving?" asked Lynn feebly

Jennie said hesitantly— "I think, but could want me to go—at once If I cared on taking a room in a hotel, but takes got to go Well He said after he came back we'd fix it up about the apartment.

Lynn said stubbornly: "I don't want you to go, until—"

"Thanks," Jennie looked down at her untouched plate. She asked, "When are you going on vacation?"

"September"

"Going home?"

"I suppose so."

"Before you go," said Jennie, "maybe you'll find someone to live with you When you come back. I'll be clear"

"I'll miss you, Jennie"

Chatterbox Work her mind was not on her words. She called things what she was mistaken and amusing, and Jennie how concerned deeply What was the matter with her anyway what did she love Meyer? Moral sense? It be a lack of moral sense in a girl who was so integrally true to her friends who had her own inflexible code It's economic, Lynn thought it has to be, somehow, with the entire economic system I don't know, I can't understand

SOMETHING WRONG

Other girls like Jennie hundreds of them thousands of them good fellows, beauty leans brutally on the make, willing to pay for what they wanted forfeit gladly the lot Jennis, struggling alone, earning their living.

Something awfully wrong somewhere.

LIQUOR ISSUE LOOMS LARGE IN CAMPAIGN

Washington, July 18 (INS)—With adjournment of Congress, the struggle over the liquor issue was transferred today to the presidential and congressional campaigns.

In spite of the desire of elements in both parties to make economic questions paramount, the drive for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and modification of the Volstead Act promised to loom large.

The course of the organized drys' forces in combatting that drive has not been determined. An active fight will be waged to elect dry members of Senate and House. Whether the full weight of the Anti-Saloon League and affiliated organizations will be thrown behind President Hoover may not be decided for several weeks.

3RD PARTY PLANS FAIL

Little headway has been made in lining up the drys behind a third party candidate. Outstanding prohibition champions like Senator Borah (R) of Idaho and Senator Sheppard (D) of Texas have displayed no interest in the efforts of dry draft them to head a prohibition revolt.

The attitude of wet organizations will be outlined within the next few weeks. All have displayed strong leanings toward Governor Roosevelt of New York, Democratic standard bearer.

Both in wet and dry camps, the record of the first session of the 72d Congress is being studied carefully. These facts are held significant:

CONGRESS "WETTER"

The Congress was wetter at the close, as revealed by record votes, than at the opening.

There was more sentiment for submitting the Eighteenth Amendment, with a view to repeal of or adoption of a substitute amendment, than for modification of the Volstead act.

In both Houses, but notably in the Senate, moderate wets and drys made earnest efforts to find a common ground on which to unite.

The Republican and Democratic wet blocs failed to win anything like unanimous support from members of the two parties in Congress. A number of Republicans from wet states of the East have openly repudiated their platform plank adopted at Chicago.

POWER BOARD ASKS AID

Washington July 18 (U.S.)—Sweeping new legislation to bring electric power holding companies under federal regulation has been recommended to Congress by the federal power commission.

Revealing a great concentration of control over the country's water power, as found in a survey, it said and admitting that it is helpless to enforce important parts of the law, the commission said:

"The commission from this study and its administrative experience is convinced that the control of holding companies in the power utility field is absolutely essential in the public interest.

"Such control to be adequate would include the service organizations of these holding companies, with supervision of all contracts between holding company and their operating companies, and would include regulation of accounts with requirements for uniformity, specifically the filing of financial and other reports on prescribed forms with full publicity.

"Adequate public regulation would also include supervision of the issue of securities by the investing public."

INSULL TURNS TIGHT-FISTED

Paris, July 18—Samuel Insull erstwhile Chicago utilities magnate, pushed off the niche of multimillionaires by the economic crisis, is no longer the lavish spender he was on previous frequent European visits.

In fact Insull in Paris today has gained a reputation as an economist in his personal budget and hotel attendants and a few night club employes regard him as an commonly close with his tips.

Insull and his wife Mrs. Margaret Rice Insull, formerly of New York, occupy two rooms in a fashionable Paris hotel where they merely took an entire floor.

Because of a shortage of De La Ste American tourists this year the latter pays only $10 a day for their small quarters, and $6.25 daily for the keep of Mrs. Insull a personal maid.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, July 18 (AP)—Despite relative firmness of Liverpool quotations, September and December wheat contracts here soon sank today to fresh low price records for the season. Hedging pressure associated with the movement of the new domestic crop found speculative buyers scarce, and the market quickly was swept from lack of support.

Opening at ⅛ decline to ¼ advance, wheat later receded all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅛ higher and afterward sagged

RADIO-MOVIE ALLIANCE

Consider Airing New Talkie Releases

BY N. E. T.

Plans are well under way whereby we can all sit home and tune in on a radio dramatization of big feature photoplays before they are released for showing at theaters over the land. Mr. M. H. Aylesworth, the RKO-NBC president, believes broadcasting can help entertainment emporium attendance no little.

EXCELLENT EXPLOITATION

While the idea isn't altogether new, it is every bit as sound as he said Mr. Aylesworth thinks it is. That isn't so much an opinion noting set forth here, as it is a statement of what has already happened right here in Boston.

Last winter and the winter before, first run pictures shown by both RKO-Proctor theaters were first presented as radio dramatic offerings weekly through WBZ-WBZA. Perhaps many matinee listeners to those offerings will recall having heard air-talkies based on "Cimarron," "Paraula," "Seed," "Rich Man's Darling," "Millie" and a score of others up to and including the last one staged, "Frankenstein."

STAGED SUCCESSFULLY

These were concluded at a carefully worked out point of [illegible] thereby [illegible] view the actual and commercial showings. Needless to say, the effort was highly effective in every way, particularly at the good old box office. It is interesting to learn that Mr. Aylesworth now plans doing the job on a considerably bigger scale employing nation-wide network facilities. People everywhere will [illegible] spend splendidly, with not [illegible] much advertising injected. After all, to get an accurate idea of what screen stories are [illegible] should be welcomed by radio and film fans alike.

MIMIC MEN

Actors who play parts in the summer suspended "March of Time" programs are busy rehearsing various roles they will have to portray when the big political fights get going shortly on the air. This series will be heard over WNAC now before long and meanwhile Ted Di Corsia is practicing by Hoovers-ing. An acceptable Roosevelt ghost is not yet reported. Columbia System casting director, Frank Readick, known for [illegible] as "The Shadow" will again be Mayor James (Jimmy) Walker of New York. Ray Collins is the Mussolini voice, with Teddy Bergman doing Stalin. Then there looms the colorful Democratic vice-presidential candidate, John N. Garner, also to be re-enacted. Additions for these and numerous other prominent world figures and their voices are scheduled to be under way during early August.

EXPENSE ELIMINATED

Listeners hereabouts are noticing lately that Phillips Lord, he who now does both "The Counter Doctor" and "Seth Parker" over NBC networks, is employing an almost identical down east dialect, as well as similar quaint philosophy for both characters.

* * *

Alexander McQueen is the fellow starting a theme song fight in connection with his "Nothing but the Truth" programs. No prizes are offered, which reminds us, Alex is Scotch

New York Banks' Stocks Are Higher

New York, July 18—New York city bank stocks advanced approximately 12 per cent in value during the past week, based upon the averages compiled by Stol, Ross & Troster. The aggregate value of 16 leading New York city bank stocks at July 15 closing prices amounted to $1,132,835,000, against an aggregate value of $1,011,248,000 on July 8 and a total of $929,885,000 reported on May 31 which was the lowest total recorded since the decline started in 1929.

The average yield of the stocks on July 15 was 10.31 per cent, which compares with a yield of 11.45 per cent recorded at the close of the previous week and a record yield of 13.24 per cent on May 31.

INCREASE IN COMMODITY PRICES ENCOURAGING

By B. C. FORBES

OUT OF THE NOWHERE has suddenly developed widespread optimism.

Visitors from different parts of the country, letters from many states, contacts with various classes in financial and social New York—all reveal a sudden ebullition of revived faith that better days are dawning.

What is the explanation of this somersault in sentiment?

Hogs Get Credit for Improvement

Chief credit perhaps should go to hogs—the four-footed species. Their market value has increased scores of millions of dollars. Corn, favorite hog food, has likewise recovered substantially. Butter and eggs, other important farm products, have also advanced. So have hides. Beef, too, has become firmer. Wheat has had reverses pricewise. Cotton is appreciably above last month's low quotations.

This doubtless has had something to do with the more cheerful sentiment in many agricultural regions.

Congress' Job Well Done

Then, too, relief was generated over events in Congress and the increasingly definite signs that adjournment was near. The truth is that, although Congress has talked wildly and alarmingly, it has acted more soberly and sensibly than was feared. On the whole, Washington has contributed invaluably to furnishing facilities to meet acute emergencies.

Securities Prices on Upgrade

What effect has the sudden lifting of sentiment had upon securities? Both domestic and foreign bonds have substantially gained in strength. Stocks, long wobbly, have lately been in pronounced upward swing, and the influence on prices has been quite pronounced in many instances. Most stocks have been selling at such low figures that the gains, although not at all sensational when measured by the number of points, nevertheless has represented a big percentage, as the following illustrations (given in round figures) reveal:

| | Low | High last wk. | PC inc. |

After so many false starts during the last 30 months, people are chary about drawing dogmatic deductions from rallies. Happily, either now or later recovery will not be undone by relapse.

SPECTATOR

Says:

The market starts the new week with the outlook decidedly obscured.

For one thing it has the adjournment of Congress in its favor, but against that it faces a weak wheat market with prices down to record low levels as July wheat sold around 44 cents a bushel.

Rally Outlook

Even if there is a rally on Congress adjourning it will very likely be short-lived for it is sure to meet an increasing amount of stock on the slightest of rises in addition to shorts who are always ready to sell into the market when they think it has gone too far

In addition, the list faces such important dividend meetings as Consolidated Gas on July 26, United States Steel on July 28, General Motors August 3, du Pont August 15 and American Telephone on August 17

One very cheering factor is the $100,000,000 rise in hog and cattle prices, followed by farmers showing no rush to sell. The fact is that hog and cattle prices are still too low, considering the cost of production.

Money for Bonds

Bonds still are the thing to look at and will be for some time yet. The action of the market last week and its demonstration that it can absorb large issues of new offerings if it thinks they are good indicates that the money is still there waiting for the chance to emerge when it thinks it is safe.

Reports that the Interstate Commerce Commission would make some announcement on the four-party plan has brought some buying into the rails and accounts for their strength, but what after the announcement—have the railroads the funds to carry out the merger plans as outlined by the commission?

Bank Statement

Boston balance ..... $17,000,000
Boston clearings ..... 20,000,000

TODAY'S NEWS OF LEADERS

LACKING the background of industrial or trade betterment, the market naturally remains at the mercy of its technical position. For the time being, at least, the suspension of European selling and of domestic liquidation has left the shorts in uncomfortable shape. The bigger bears, with few exceptions have been virtually driven from the market, so that the short account left is comprised mainly of the so-called "Teddy Bears," or small traders

Real Test for the Market Is Ahead

When covering by the small speculators is completed, the market will necessitate new support from more fundamental influences. Then will develop the real test whether the advance is to be sufficiently discriminating to win impressive support, or whether it will generate into pool activity exclusively.

Regardless of the longer-term prospects most professionals in Wall Street are disinclined to "buck the market" at the moment.

Best Power Shown by Rails and Oils

Rails and oils have been showing the best recuperative power. Carriers have in the lead Atchison and Union Pacific

The session of the Association of Railway Executives this week may result in further concerted action by railroad officials to better the railroads' position. In addition, a number of railroad presidents may publicly express their views on the outlook for the remainder of the year. A few have indicated privately that they were optimistic on the prospects for the Fall months.

While they are inclined to look for some further progress on the upside, conservative interests suggest disposing of long speculative holdings on any substantial bulges.

ICE LEADER TO START LAUNDRY NEXT MONTH

By FRANK H. MELOON

President Charles C. Small, of the American Ice Company, tells me today that the company's new laundry plant, which has been under construction in Long Island City, New York, for nearly a year has been completed and will be placed in operation next month

Boston Ice Co. is a subsidiary of American Ice. It is evident that ice leaders are working zealously to expand into new profitable fields and these include air-cooling by ice.

When it was first learned that the giant distributor of ice and fuel along the Atlantic Seaboard was planning to extend the scope of its operations to the laundry field, President Small stated that further expansion would depend upon the successful operation of the new Long Island plant.

He and his directors, however, are confident of success and have expended a million dollars in erecting one of the most complete laundry units in the East. The new plant will have the supervision of the American company's own staff of engineers and sales executives, although experienced laundry men will be in direct charge of operations. Extensive use will be made of the American company's ice and fuel distributing facilities in the New York metropolitan district.

Charles C. Small

The present operation is undoubtedly the first step in a plan of expansion which will give the company a series of laundry units in all of the larger cities of the Eastern, Middle Seaboard and make it an outstanding factor in the laundry field. President Small, native of Kennebunkport, Me., who caused lengthly preliminary studies to be made before entering on the new venture, believes that the laundry field, largely unorganized as it has been hitherto offers the same opportunities for corporate development on a large scale that was presented by the ice industry twenty years ago.

In this column last week we condemned the advance in letter postage rates as unlikely to lead to increased revenues. Along this line the following Washington dispatch published by the American Banker, is most interesting

"While America is increasing her postage charges, the internal postage rate of New Zealand and the rate in the United States and the British colonies is to be cut back to the 'penny postage' rate. This is roughly one-half of the advanced rates.

"It was stated that there had been a falling off in postage revenues and much criticism."

Gonic Mills at Gonic, N. H., near Rochester, under Boston management, reopened today, adding largely to employment in the district and with good orders on hand.

Plants of the Nashua Manufacturing Company at Lowell and Nashua, N. H., which employ about 2000, reopened today. Irregular schedules will be maintained for the present. It being the policy of the management to operate solely on orders. Business in blankets is reported to be improved and the general feeling in the market is declared to be decidedly better.

More buyers are in the market making inquiries than have been for a considerable period, indicating they are in need of goods and that actual orders will be forthcoming in greater volume soon. Considerable activity is noted in blankets of silk warp construction, that is silk and wool.

Department of public utilities has promulgated rules and regulations for lending of money by gas and electric companies which is the same as the preliminary list published Thursday with the following additions: That money may be loaned to employes of said companies who are in need of financial security for the purpose of the necessity of sold or services furnished or in payment in whole or in part for property sold.

Now where are the rules by which well-managed utilities can lend money to the poverty-stricken municipalities to pay their more pressing debts? As is being done right here in Massachusetts.

Dividends

Connecticut Railway & Lighting Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.12½ on the common, payable Aug. 15 to stock of record July 20.

Royal Typewriter Co. omitted semi-annual dividend of $3.50 on the preferred due at this time. This because of heavy expenses involved in bringing out and merchandising its new Royal signet model for use by children and offering a new simplified small typewriter.

* * *

Railway & Light Securities Co. passed common dividend. Three months ago the company paid 37½ cents a share and six months ago 50 cents a share. Directors declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share on the preferred stock payable Aug. 1 to stockholders of record July 18.

—STATE ST.—

Hears:

That while the adjournment of Congress had been discounted in advance there was no little stock being pressed for sale that prices managed to hold near the best levels. As a consequence those long of stocks are inclined to hold on with the idea in mind that an extension of the rally is in prospect. Stops at the lows of last Friday protect holdings.

Interest in Bonds

Brokers report that there has been a marked increase in bonds by small investors in the last few weeks. This is about as cheering a sign as the "street" could want. It means that the road is now security offerings, intended to finance industry, is opening.

It also means that the large class who depend for income from fixed interest securities can start to breathe easy. They will then resume spending at what can be termed a normal pace. And once money, for both investment and living, is used normally, prosperity will speedily return

The average trader scarcely looks at the bond list and therefore misses a handful of interest income profit. If anything is worth following in the next few months it is the list department. Attractive issues and brokers are prepared to offer interesting lists.

Ticker Talk

Tariff adherents will have a chance to see how it feels to be on the outside looking at good markets if the Ottawa conference produces an imperial free trade market, with barriers erected against the other nations of the world. They will also realize the folly of subsidized industry

Perhaps the truest barometer of foreign conditions is the action of the shares of companies with a large stake abroad. International Telephone, for instance, has provided the ability to make $3 a share under ordinary conditions. Improved foreign exchange would return such earnings

If Telephone only included the actual earnings of subsidiaries, the net would be $3.69 and not $1.02. This is a likely policy in the second half. Full year per share showing would then be about $7 and foreshadows a dividend cut to around $6.

Boardroom Briefs

The financial district will devote more than an ordinary amount of attention to the loans of investment trusts in the weekly member bank report . . . Should it reverse the contracting tendency of recent months it will be seen as an indication of bank optimism

One week from today the directors of U. S. Steel supply the answer to the riddle of just what they think by paying a preferred dividend in excess of $1.75 annually. Paying the regular would mean they think the outlook is much better than it appears to be on the surface.

The oil company bonds still look like the best buys for the business man . . . They offer a good return and an excellent chance of capital appreciation . . . Gillette 5s, listed on the curb, are also attractive . . . Rail bonds can be left alone for awhile.

STOCKS STEADY IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, July 18—Important shares were steady in trading today on the New York Stock Exchange.

The stocks showed a firm tone, with the railroad stocks leading the way.

There were no signs of buoyancy to "celebrate" the adjournment of Congress on Saturday, what little advance there was being of the slow, creeping variety.

RAILS ARE BRIGHT

Buying in the rails at the end of the first hour followed some rumors of an early announcement on the four-party rail merger announcement, but later gains were small.

Special issues were sharply higher. An outstanding strong spot was Homestake Mining, while other mining shares were strong. U. S. Steel preferred rose more than a point and the common was strong. Utilities were backward, after early gains.

Bonds contributed a further advance today, but commodities were mixed, with wheat generally lower and cotton and sugar lower.

OILS ENJOY A FLURRY

A flurry of buying lifted the oils, but gains were fractional. Auburn ran up and down in a two-point range. Farm implement and mail order shares were lower on the reaction in wheat. Pool operations were apparent in individual issues like United Aircraft and Foster Wheeler.

Buoyancy of United States Treasury issues was the feature of the bond market today with 3s of 1951-55 and 3¼s of 1946-49 advancing more than a point in heavy trading.

Strength of the lower yield government maturities was directly attributable to the passage by Congress of the Glass amendment to the home loan bank bill which provides that national banks bearing an interest rate of 3½ per cent or less shall be eligible for bank note circulation.

Securities markets started the new week into harmony with the constructive development of the long awaited adjournment of Congress, and impending publication of a number of second quarter earnings statements confidently expected to make a rather sorry showing.

Most commentators on the financial district, however, were heartened by the lifting of the burden of legislative uncertainty. The publicity clause of the relief bill regarding loans to financial institutions had caused some perplexity in banking quarters, but the interpretation that the normally secrecy of loans might be kept confidential by the clerks of the House and Senate while Congress is not in session was reassuring.

Million for Boston Sought by Dolan

City Treasurer Dolan of Boston will receive bids until 12 o'clock noon, July 19, for $1,000,000 temporary loan, notes to be dated July 20, due October 19, 1932 and figured on a 366-day to the year basis, interest to follow.

COOK-COOS

By TED COOK

There seems to be some confusion concerning the Republican prohibition plank.

However, the whole matter is cleared up today in a statement from the Republican publicity bureau which states:

"Intrinsic to the contrary notwithstanding, that the principles of Americanism for which, no doubt, there are, regardless of opinions otherwise stated, certain exigencies, if not paramount, at least a solution should be forthcoming without equivocation, whereas on the other hand a misapprehension may arise. If not then it is not what it is in case it was."

Where Your Tax Money Goes

We believe if more taxpayers would take an interest in how and why the government spends $2,000,000 a minute there would be less grumbling and more gratitude. For example, consider the work of J. Rufus Gillipsie, of the Department of Agriculture. He complains that no one, with the exception of a few lady friends, appreciates what he is doing to tabulate the number of pests in the Middle-West. Gillipsie has a large staff of field workers who are stationed in Harvey House lunch rooms just to count the winks directed at waitresses. If the number of winks compares favorably with the average for this period last year, the government will issue a bulletin to warn farmers' daughters against traveling salesmen.

STOOL PIGEONS POINT WAY TO ALKY PLANTS

By THE MASKED REPORTER

Copyright, 1932, by the Boston Evening American. All rights reserved.

Occasionally an alcohol distilling plant, such as I have described, has been "knocked off" by prohibition agents.

This has generally been due to a "tip off" from rival bootleggers. In rare cases, a still has been located by federal agents who follow a truckload of government formula alcohol on its way from a warehouse to the distillery.

The Masked Reporter.

But as a rule the alcohol crooks seem to have several long jumps ahead of the alcohol authorities.

As long as the formula alcohol ostensibly intended for use in the manufacture of patent medicines, perfumes, is in the warehouse it is safe no matter who owns it, because it is a lucrative product.

The "mobs" have nothing to worry about on that point, although at times seizures have been made at warehouses, and also on trucks and at steamship piers, the government entering a right to analyze it. Lawyers get it back for the racketeers.

DISCOVERY PRIZED

Where the alcohol barons excel recently was in storing some partially "cleaned" formula alcohol, which has been shipped here from outside New England. This stuff was a prize discovery for Joseph A. Tate and his squad of special Department of Justice investigators.

To protect formula alcohol from being followed as it moved by truck from warehouse to distillery, and to protect it from being legally seized, various methods have been pursued by the local rings.

ARMED GUARD CONVOY

The customary method has been for the truck to take a specified route, at some point of which it was met by a convoy of automobiles for escort to the plant.

The members of the ring, in the convoying cars, watched to see that the truck was not followed by federal men or hijackers.

If a federal squad was trailing it, the truckman was given a signal to take a route through city traffic to fool and shake off the pursuit. If unsuccessful, the driver put his truck with its cargo in a garage to locate, and in any way could be found to sneak it out.

Sometimes a truck with a cargo of formula alcohol was stopped on the road. But the driver was able to show bills of lading specifying delivery to a warehouse located somewhere further along in the direction he was taking. As his cargo was legitimate merchandise, he was amply protected.

FAST CAR DELIVERIES

After a load has been delivered to a distilling plant, and the alcohol removed, the latter is carried away in small lots in fast automobiles.

It is stored temporarily at an hiding place, generally selected on the outskirts of a town, not too near the distillery, to be relayed later for distribution to the bootleg trade.

At times, pure alcohol or the way from the manufacturers before denaturing plants, has found its way by carload lots into the hands of racketeers.

But the chief source of supply for the alcohol syndicates remains the dealers in industrial wants, obtaining the formula alcohol, supposedly for legitimate trade.

Some of these firms are owned some only financed by the racketeers. Purchases from the latter are always made "cash on the line." One firm, whose business had always been of small volume, was discovered by investigators to have used 80,000 gallons of formula alcohol in four months.

You can guess where this went!

Rose Enters Race for House From Ward 14

David A. Rose of 27 York st., Dorchester, a director of the Woodrow Wilson Society, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for the House of Representatives from Ward 14.

A life-long resident of the district, Mr. Rose has been active in politics and in a number of numerous civic, legal and fraternal organizations. He graduated from English high school, Boston University College of Business of Administration, Boston University law school and Georgetown University and is a practicing attorney. In the last States primary he was defeated by the slight margin of 119 votes.

One Pair of Hands

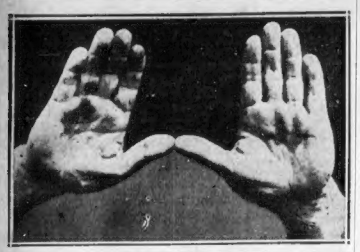
Much Character and Profit in Them



FRONT VIEW

This pair of hands, muscularly powerful, as you see, is also, according to the distinguished writer, Rex Beach, scientifically powerful, wonderful in their healing power, the most wonderful pair of hands in the world.

Rex Beach says that Dr. M. W. Locke, the owner of this pair of hands, possesses power of curing human ills extraordinary in its nature.

Beach has seen crowds gathered at the little Toronto village which Dr. Locke never leaves, patients flocking to him from great distances.

He treats human ills entirely by manipulation of the feet. About twenty seconds is enough for one treatment, and he can and does take care of hundreds of patients in a day. They wait, patiently watching, until each has had his turn.

Rex Beach, in his extraordinarily interesting article in the August Cosmopolitan Magazine, tells you merely what he has seen. He does not ask you to believe anything.

One remarkable thing about Dr. Locke and his method is his way of charging. He treats many diseases by manipulation of the feet, and will not allow anybody to pay more than one dollar, and those that choose pay nothing.

Rex Beach went to Williamsburg, Ont., the little village where Dr. Locke demonstrates his power, and tells exactly what he saw, automobiles from every part of Canada and from every one of our States bringing sufferers.

Dr. Locke, who, according to Mr. Beach, treats as many as one thousand patients in a day, says that many of our ills, including some of the most serious, come from "faulty foot posture," and such diseases he cures, using the powerful hands that you see here.

From the beginning of human history hands have impressed men. The "laying on of hands," to cure disease by "virtue" emanating from a higher personality, is older than the Christian era. English Kings and others cured disease by merely touching their subjects. A disease very common in England was called "King's Evil" because a touch of the King's hand cured it.

Fathers of the old school never failed to lay their hands upon the head of a son, blessing him on his departure into the great world, or on the father's departure to a better world.

Hands show character as clearly as the face shows it. A highly developed thumb shows the result of civilization, and of the use of the hands backed by thought.

The gorilla, whose thumb is used merely as a hook to put around the branch of a tree, has a tiny thumb compared with the rest of his hand.

Nikola Tesla, the distinguished scientist who harnessed the power of Niagara, and did other remarkable things, has a thumb almost as big around as his wrist.

The lines in the hand that are supposed to mean so much about character really mean nothing. They tell you nothing about destiny or fate—simply show you how the hand of a baby was folded up before it was born. If you fold a piece of paper, and then straighten it out, it keeps the marks of the folding. When a baby's hand is folded wrinkles or marks are formed, and they remain.

Thumb prints are useful to the police. Some ancient rulers used them on important documents, pressing the thumb down on the hot wax as a seal. There was no imitating that.

What Rex Beach tells you, in Cosmopolitan Magazine for August, about these powerful hands will interest you, whether or not you believe that improper foot posture can cause so many diseases.

New York Day by Day

Diary of a Modern Pepys

NEW YORK, July 18—Diary of a modern Pepys: A letter from Chicago in extravagant praise of Jackie Cooper. Also a greeting from Tom Webster, London cartoonist. Too, a note from Mrs. Ed Wynn. Thence breakfasting on a fricture of fish and a Trappist monk cheese, whettingly fragranced, Pearson McCord sent.

So labouring in the heat come mid-afternoon and with my wife to call on the Ted Woodyards of Spencer, but they away and walking along serene Murray Hill saw a taxi driver, in a fearful wax, bash another with an iron jack, a gory sight, which sickened us.

To Mrs. Paul Whiteman's for a dinner and vis-a-vis with the engaging May Wong, who promised to take me through Chinatown some day. George Gershwin there, too, playing his "An American in Paris." Also, the former Irene Delroy, Billy and Phyllis Seaman, Harold Ross, Roxy and Mary Brian.

An elaborate Cinderella story current concerns a boy writer and a girl artist in the throes of an achingly beautiful love. Each was attic poor. A friend, unable to rent his de luxe furnished apartment upon being called to Europe for a year, suggested they marry and occupy it free. They did. Spurred by such apocalyptic splendor, he has sold a novel and four short stories and she is painting three rich tenants in the building.

Personal nomination for the ace self-effacing husband—George Palmer Putnam.

Early Missouri settlers expressed an odd penchant for naming their towns after famous places. During the last six months I have received letters from that State postmarked: Haiti, Louisiana, Mexico, Nevada, Paris, Versailles, Pacific, Princeton, Richmond, Troy, Glasgow and Albany.

Too, much of the modern sophistication has been spawned by residents of the Missouri whistle stops. No one, save Noel Coward, can put so much ultra swank into a play as Zoe Atkins, born and reared in the town of Humansville, Mo., with a population of 1021. Tommy Millard, bespatted and monocled worldling, swings a yearly circuit of Shanghai, London, New York and Constantinople. He is a square-toed country jake whose boots once smelled of the Rollo, Mo., byres. The man who has shorn the movies of much dirty-work-at-the-cross-roads yokelism is Rupert Hughes, a one-galloused sod-buster from Lancaster, Mo. "Duke" Cross, for years a darling of the flappers in the vaudeville duo of Cross and Josephine, still casts his vote in Cameron, Mo.

Somebody tells me, too, that Tammany Young, notorious gate crasher, is from Mizoo. Tammany is of life's miscellany a fellow of infinite caprices, with hat abaft, who lives by his wits. He is usually about the Yankee Stadium, running inglorious errands for Col. Ruppert, but making the world brighter and a bit naughtier.

* * *

Broadway, taking on the Bowery mottle of confusing uncertainties, now has an abandoned store where an old-time herb doctor holds forth with a free show. As a side line he peddles a magic vermicide which, he declares, destroys everything from canker to weevil. I was among the gar-mouthed listeners drifting off at the close of his spiel without purchasing. As we melted into the sidewalk crowds he gave vent to this impassioned outcry: "Broadway, street of spendthrifts!"

* * *

Pedro Joe was the herb doctor out our way, roaming in the spring to dig herbaceous potions he brewed in his tin-can lean-to back of Schreck's slaughter house. Joe was a Portuguese with coarse black hair to his shoulders, gorse-bush eyebrows—a mellow brigand down from the hills, with a relish for rye straight and a gift of blowing tunes on peach leaves. As he hobbled through town we young scalawags jeered: "Joe, Joe, teeadigo foe, tea-legged, knock-kneed, cross-eyed Joe." One noon after a hooting he waited around the corner in an alley and jumped out at me. My shriek started everybody home for dinner. They thought it was the factory whistle.

Just Folks

The Work of Summer

Comes summer to the world its work to do,
To bring fruition to the tiny seed;
To strew the earth with all that man may need;
To give the apple cheek its crimson hue
And the rich stores of golden grain renew;
To toil with patience and with certain speed
Without complaint o'er large or trivial deed,
And run in service here its brief course through.
I sometimes think that Summer seems to know
It shall not live to see its tasks complete.
It lays its glories gained at Autumn's feet,
And is content in having labored so,
As some tired father when his time is done,
Who leaves to those he loves the treasures won.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Have All the Answers

TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND World War veterans sleeping on the mud, starving on the streets of Washington. Hundreds more marching to join them because they have no place else to go.

You've been hearing about them for weeks. At first it sickened and frightened you. Now, perhaps, it is beginning to seem an old story. You're forgetting them. Don't! There's another side of that story which you haven't heard—the most dangerous side.

Elsie Robinson

Those 25,000 men are asking Washington for jobs or bonus. Washington says, "Go home!"

"But where are the homes to go to?" cry the men. "Where are the jobs? Where is the food to keep our starving children alive? You are worrying about the banks and railroads of America; but we are America—the workers and soldiers who made and saved America. Why aren't you worrying about us?"

Many questions the veterans ask the government. The government has no answers. But there are others in Washington who have answers. They, too, are ex-soldiers; but they are not quite as hungry or ragged as the other soldiers. They do not wear that look of bitter bewilderment. To the contrary, they are quite cool and collected. They are very orderly. They commit no overt acts; utter no threats; make no attempts to "start something."

BUT WHEN THE OTHER SOLDIERS ASK THEIR BITTER QUESTIONS, THESE MEN HAVE THE ANSWERS.

When the men of the B. E. F. say—"We are hungry and unemployed. Why can't the country which we saved give us food and jobs?" these other men answer.

"There is a place where the men who saved their country are not hungry. Ex-soldiers have jobs in that place. They have homes. Their wives and old mothers do not wander homeless in the streets. Their children do not die from neglect.

"Railroads and banks do not come first in that country. Citizens come first—laborers, farmers, mechanics. That country is run by citizens for citizens. It is the salvation of workers. It will help even the workers who are not there—who are suffering under other forms of government. It will feed and finance those other workers. There is food and money mobilized in New Jersey and Detroit for these workers."

Quietly these men circulate about, giving the answer. The police cannot throw them out. They are doing nothing for which they can be thrown out. But the veterans of the B. E. F. listen to them in sullen, hostile silence. They know what these men are.

THEY KNOW THAT THESE MEN ARE COMMUNISTS. THEY KNOW THEY ARE TALKING ABOUT SOVIET RUSSIA.

These men who saved America do not believe in Communism. They believe in Democracy. They believe in a form of government which gives every individual a fair chance and lets him make the most of it. They fought for that form of government. They would like to fight for it again. They would like to knock all the Communists' arguments down their back teeth. But they can't!

Democracy should work out. Democracy should stand by the men who have fought for it, worked for it, believed in it. But it doesn't. Why?

Twenty-five thousand men prowl hungry through the streets of Washington, waiting for an answer. But Washington has no answer.

WHAT WILL BE THE CONSEQUENCE? IF WASHINGTON SUCCEEDS IN DRIVING THESE MEN AWAY; IF IT SCATTERS THEM IN HOMELESS, HUNGRY HORDES THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY, WHAT MESSAGE WILL THEY CARRY WITH THEM TO THE HUNGRY, HOMELESS MILLIONS THEY WILL MEET?

Think it over. What's your guess?

Bread vs. Ballyhoo and Bunk

By Claude G. Bowers

ANY ACTION on the part of the recent Allies in Europe which means the abandonment of the utterly mad and inhuman idea of trying to collect the whole of the reparations demanded of Germany marks an advance toward sanity. No sane person ever thought such reparations could be collected, and no just man ever thought they should be.

It is unfortunate that the actions of these nations should have been so confused by expressions of European statesmen as to create the impression that one of the purposes is to attempt to intimidate the United States into paying the reparations in an indirect way.

The denials from European statesmen have failed to quiet the proper resentment here because they have been contradictory; and there has been a disposition to assume that Chamberlain was not deliberately misrepresenting when he told the Commons that the United States had been consulted.

We now have a denial of this from Mr. Hoover, who announces, in a letter to Senator Borah, that we were not consulted, and that he does "not propose that the American people shall be pressed into any line of action or that our policies shall be in any way influenced by such a combination, either open or implied."

He might have added that Congress, backed by overwhelming American sentiment, has declared unequivocally against any further reduction of the debts to us by the transfering of the obligation to pay from the nations that borrowed the money and used it for their own purposes, to the American taxpayers.

Secretary Hurley's Stump Speech

Secretary Hurley, who thinks the unemployed must be left to "shift for themselves," made a speech in glorification of the fruits of the Hoover Administration, and Senator Wagner published an article in "Liberty" warning against the Administration's attitude toward the jobless.

The speech was a characteristic stump speech with a usual poverty of ideas, and the article is one that thoughtful Americans from bankers to scrubwomen would do well to ponder. The article by Wagner is one of the best expressions of the viewpoint of a humanitarian, who knows his history, that has been written on the supreme tragedy and peril of the republic—the ten million breadwinners denied their inalienable right to work.

Wagner Answers Hurley

He answers Hurley without intending it in one sentence:

"Our people ask for bread and we give them ballyhoo."

He meets Mr. Hoover's absurd, and, under the circumstances, almost offensive ignorance of or indifference to the misery of the thirty million people affected by unemployment in a paragraph:

"Today the American people are suffering from an unparalleled depression. The savings of the middle class are swept away. Millions of families depend for livelihood upon charity. But the President urges them to buy new cars and exhorts them to refrain from hoarding. That seems like bitter irony to people who cannot pay for the renewal of a license plate on last year's car."

We wish the Administration group could comprehend what Wagner so clearly sees—that the conditions of today are a deadly menace to our institutions. It seems incredible that the men entrusted with the government should be so blissfully aloof from the realities of the life of the masses of the people that they do not even guess that a feeling of bitter cynicism is dominating the thinking of the millions.

Wagner Draws His Indictment

Senator Wagner has a right to discuss the crisis because he saw it among the first and sought, through constructive measures, to prepare for it before it struck and to prevent, in so far as it is humanly possible, a recurrence. His measures at first were scouted by the Administration; then they were defeated by the influence of the Administration; then some of them were accepted by the Administration when there was no escape; but none of these accepted have been used by the Administration.

History will want an explanation of such blindness in those in power.

Wagner draws his indictment:

"The second pathway is to stop hoarding by the Government. The Administration, after unlimbering the banking machinery, is content to sit with folded hands, like a Buddha serenely contemplating his navel. While exhorting the people not to hoard, Uncle Sam himself is the most unconscionable of hoarders. The Government deliberately delays projects investigated and approved by Congress. Public construction amounting to $1,000,000,000 has been authorized by law. The blueprints are ready. Every detail has been worked out."

Bonds Could Have Been Sold

Wagner from the first has favored an adequate bond issue for public works to put men to work and thus give trade an upward trend. If there is any other way to the revival of trade, without which we must go under, no one yet has suggested the way. The bonds could have been sold. One year ago the government offered $2,500,000 in bonds and they were oversubscribed four to one. In April of this year it offered $900,000,000 in bonds and they were oversubscribed three-and-a-half to one.

But the Administration thinks it "wild" and "unsound" to sell bonds for public building to put men to work to save the lives of women and children and give the mechants a chance. And Wagner asks:

"If the U. S. Treasury can borrow money to aid Germany, England, Austria and France, why is it wrong for the U. S. Treasury to borrow money to put Americans to work?"

A Cossack With a Whip

The reason nothing effective has been done to stem this desperately dangerous tide of unemployment is implied in Wagner's comment:

"I cannot look upon suffering with the detachment of a great engineer. I see the humanity behind the statistics of unemployment, diminished car loadings, foreclosures and bankruptcies."

All of which suggests that the tragedy of our situation is that those in power do not think of government in terms of humanity; and any government that ignores the human equation is merely a task master—a Cossack with a whip.

Is it possible that even those high-placed financially see no danger in this detachment from the human misery about us?
